FOR PRESIDENT,

HON. JAMES G. BLAINE,

"I wish to speak for the millions of all political parties, and in their name to declare that the Republic must be strong enough, and shall be strong enough to protect the weakest of its citizens in all their rights."—JAMES G. BLAINE.

EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

WHAT the third termers want is a strong man to hold the unit rule together.

THE New York Tribune says: The Greenbackers won their first victory in Congress when they seated Yocum.

ONE of the enraged Grant papers goes so far as to call Washburn a "false Judas." We would like to know what kind of a Judas that is.

IT is reported that Andrew G. Curtin does not care a fig because he did not win in his contest with Yocum. He says "he can stand it if the party can."

SOME of the Boston Greenbackers want Ben Butler for President, and David Davis of Illinois for Vice President. There is one thing certain: that could not be called a light ticket.

IT is said by those who pretend to know, that Senator William Wallace will be a candidate for Congress in this district next fall. Wonder if he helped to defeat Curtin so as to help his own chances?

THE new Democrat scheme for stealing the Presidency under the pretence of legal form comes very properly from a senator from the solid South. It is a typical specimen of Southern bulldozing and the intended victim of the outrage is the will of the American people.

IF opposition to Grant constitutes treason the Republican party is full of traitors, but then the Democrats need not take any consolation from this, because if the "strong man" should happen to make it every true and honest Republican will fall into line. It is principles we are fighting for, not men.

SENATOR BLAINE sent as a wedding gift to young Mrs. Eleanor Sherman-Thackara a case of fish knives with a card on which was written: "To the daughter with as much love as I have ever borne the mother." The mother is Mr. Blaine's cousin. Gail Hamilton sent the bride a beautiful flower picture with these lines:

"Hasten, happy roses,
Come to me by May,
In your folded petals
Lies my wedding day."

ONE of the disappointed Democrats who went to Washington to see Gov. Curtin take his seat, after the result was announced telegraphed home to a friend "twenty-two rebel brigadiers could not forget that Andrew G. Curtin was the great war governor." There was a good number of Democrats at home that did not forget it either, if they had there would have been no contest. It is hard for a true barbon Democrat to forgive loyalty to the flag.

ALEXANDER H. STEVENS, Ex-Vice President of the Southern Confederacy, said "he had no use for Curtin since he attended the Altoona Conference" of loyal governors, and advised a vigorous prosecution of the war. We always believed—and this remark of Stevens proves it as far as he is concerned—that the Southern rebels are as bitter as ever. What do our Democrats think of that remark of the ex-rebel as a reason for voting against their candidate?

The Curtin-Yocum Contest.

The result of the Curtin-Yocum contest evidences very clearly that Hon. A. G. Curtin is not regarded by the Democratic party as a thorough convert. The action of the Democracy in this district, and in Congress shows that they doubt the genuineness of his Democracy and they are unwilling to receive him into honorable fellowship, and invest him with political power. In short they say they do not want him. That Hon. A. G. Curtin has the apparent enthusiastic support of the Nemesis existing in the Democratic party in this county is very potent, and has been publicly declared by the Centre Democrat, the organ thereof.

Nemesis is supposed to be the goddess of aretributive justice or vengeance.

The prevailing motive of those who most earnestly advocated the political advancement of Gov. Curtin in the Democratic party was manifestly that of vengeance. A determined effort to crush out and annihilate P. G. Meek, who had so manipulated the Democratic party, that it had become subject to his control and dictation, and in Centre county was synonomous with Meekism, was the ruling motive that forced the contest between Curtin and Meek for the congressional delegates in this county two years ago. There was not so much unselfish and patriotic love for Curtin on the part of his supporters, as there was a cordial hatred for Meek.

Those who wanted the doughty editor of the Watchman squelched, thought that Curtin was the only effective instrument they could command and use to accomplish their purpose. So they seized on to him, and they now enjoy the result.

That Governor Curtin has been misled and deceived by the Democracy, it seems to us ought to be satisfactorily demonstrated to his own mind. That some of the Democrats desired to use him to gratify their personal vengeance, is certainly clear; that others sought to get a lien on his purse strings is very evident; and that others regarding themselves as embryotic statesmen, hoped that his elevation to political power, by their enthusiastic support, would enable them to seize upon his greatness and command him from his political exaltation in the party, to reach down and lend them an assisting hand, to future statesmenship, is quite potent to all political observers. It seems to us therefore that Governor Curtin and his friends ought to see very clearly that they are not appreciated by the Democracy of Centre county and of the country at large. That they have been deceived and used by the Democratic party for the gratification of the most personal and selfish motives, and that they are not wanted within their party for any other purpose—and especially not for any good to themselves.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 13, '80

The Curtin-Yocum contested seat case has been settled by leaving the Greenbacker Yocum undisturbed. This is the only thing the Greenback party has accomplished this session. Curtin has had a hard experience since he left the Republican party, and now he has been rejected by the very Democrats who got him to run for Congress.

The House will meet after the 15th of this month, one hour earlier than usual. From this, it will be seen that Congress is really in earnest in its endeavor to adjourn by the first of June. The appropriations Committee of the House expects to get through with the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill to-day. If this should prove a correct conclusion the sundry civil appropriation bill will be reported to-morrow, and it is hoped to have it passed by the end of the week. This will leave but two bills for the House to pass, the River and Harbor and the general deficiency appropriation bill. An effort is to be made next Monday to pass the River and Harbor bill under a suspension of the rules. If all these calculations should eventuate there will be but one bill to be disposed of by the House after this week—the general deficiency bill. From the above it will be seen that Congress can adjourn easily by the 1st of June. If, however, there is a tariff discussion, and an effort to pass the funding bill, the session may last until the middle of August.

Democratic management, or rather mismanagement is shown up by their neglect to appropriate money to light the public buildings. The Postoffice Department has no gas nor water, and in a few days the public buildings all over the country will be in a like predicament, causing serious embarrassement to the public business.

Senator Hill finished, yesterday, his speech supporting the Kellogg resolutions. It was a ferocious effort, which is all that can be said in its favor. He simply reiterated the old falsehoods so often disproved by the Republicans. In fact, his speech throughout showed that intense personal hate toward Kellogg animated him rather than the justice of his case. His speech was intended to convert the doubtful Democratic Senators, but in this it failed utterly. It is even said that Hampton of South Carolina will reply to Hill in a defence of Kellogg.

Superintendent of the census Walker is pushing his preparations rapidly towards completion. He has a night force at work.

Opinion of the Court in Wagner's Case.

Following is the opinion of the Court in regard to the Wagner case. Our readers are all familiar with the particulars of the case, and we need not here enumerate them.

John Wagner.

Before John Rankin, a justice of the peace in and for said county of Centre, on information made under oath by George Miller, fish warden, duly appointed by the Board of Fish Commissioners of Pennsylvania, complaining that the said John Wagner did fish with a net and catch fish in the waters of Spring creek, a stream inhabited by speckled trout and black bass, contrary to the Act of Assembly in such cases made and provided.

For the purposes of this suit it was admitted by A. O. Furst and D. H. Hastings, counsel representing the defendant, who appeared before the justice voluntarily:

First. That Spring creek is a stream in the county of Centre that is inhabited by speckled trout and black bass.

Second. That on the —— day of May, A. D. 1880, John Wagner, the defendant, did fish in said stream and did catch fish known as suckers with a net commonly called a dip net the meshes or open spaces of which were less than three inches.

Fourth. It is denied by the defendant, and for the purpose of this suit it is admitted that said John Wagner did not by means of the said net catch any speckled trout or black bass.

I am asked upon this admission of facts to decide whether or not there has been any violation of the law, and if so whether John Wagner is liable to the penalty of twenty-five dollars prescribed by the laws upon this subject.

This being a question of much importance to all our citizens, owing to the fact that we have numerous streams in Centre county that are naturally inhabited by brook and speckled trout, and others that the board of fish commissioners, under the authority of several acts of assembly, at great expense to the tax payers have stocked with speckled trout and black bass, and which if properly protected it is believed will so multiply as to yield a large return for the outlay.

The laws upon the subject of game and fish being somewhat complicated, owing to the numerous acts of assembly upon the subject, I have requested the counsel representing the complainant on behalf of the commonwealth, and also of the defendant, to unite in a written opinion as to what the law is as applicable to the facts as admitted in this case as follows.

JNO. I. RANKIN.

BELLEFONTE, May, 1880.

JOHN I. RANKIN, ESQ.

Dear Sir:—In accordance with your request we have carefully examined the law upon the subject of game and fish, as applicable to the facts as admitted in the case before you, and we all concur in the opinion here given.

The 18th section of the Act of Assembly of May 1st, 1873, provides that no person shall at any time catch any speckled trout with any device save only with hook and line except for the purposes of propogation or scientific investigation, or place any set lines in waters inhabited by them under a penalty of twenty-five dollars.

The 25th section of the same act provides that in any of the inland waters of this State inhabited by speckled trout or black bass (and in which the fishing with nets and the like devices is not altogether prohibited by this act or some other act in force in this commonwealth) it shall not be lawful to catch or kill fish by means of any net or device in the nature thereof, the meshes or open spaces in which shall be less than three inches, under a penalty of twenty-five dollars; provided, that nothing herein shall authorize the catching of specled trout by means of any device save only with hook and line, except for propogation and to stock other waters.

The 23d section of the act of Assembly of May the 5th, 1876, provides that in any of the inland waters of this State inhabited by speckled trout or block bass, it shall not be lawful to catch or kill fish by means of any net or device in the nature thereof, the meshes or open space in which shall be less than three inches, under a penalty of twenty-five dollars, provided that nothing herein shall authorize the catching of speckled trout by means of any device save only by rod, hook and line, except for propogation and to stock other waters.

It will be noticed that this section is a reenactment of the 25th section of the act of May 1st, 1873, with the following words left out, "and in which the fishing with nets and the like devices is not altogether prohibited by this act or some other act in force in this Commonwealth."

The 24th section of the act of Assembly of June 3d, 1878, provides that it shall be lawful to fish with fyke or hoop nets in any of the streams of this Commonwealth uninhabited by brook or speckled trout during the months of March, April, May, September, October and November of each year, provided that the meshes of said nets shall not be less than one inch in size, and that said nets shall not be placed at the confluence of any wing walls, either newly made or abandoned; and provided, further, that it shall be the duty of any one taking or capturing by means of any fyke or hoop nets, as aforesaid, any salmon, bass, trout, speckled trout, pike, pickerel, or every kind of fish introduced into the waters of this Commonwealth by authority of the same, for the purpose of stocking said waters, to return the same alive to the waters whence taken, the violation of any of the provisions of this section shall subject the offender to a penalty of twenty-five dollars for each and every offense.

The 41st section of the same act provides that "all acts or parts of acts which are inconsistent with this act be and the same are hereby repealed."

These are all the laws, or parts of laws in force relating to the facts as admitted in the case upon which you have asked our opinion.

The 25th section of the act of May 3d, 1873, was in part supplied by the 23d section of the act of June 5th, 1876. This section is very plain in its provisions and declares that it shall not be lawful to catch or kill fish (of any kind) by means of any net or device in the nature thereof the meshes or open spaces in which shall be less than three inches, in any of the inland waters of the State inhabited by speckled trout or black bass.

It is conceded that Spring creek in which John Wagner was fishing with a net, the meshes of which were less than three inches, is inhabited by speckled trout, and that several years ago black bass were placed in said stream under the directions of the fish commissioners both above and below the point at which Wagner was fishing, and that some have been seen and caught therein. If therefore this section of the act of the 5th of May, 1876, be not repealed by the repealing clause of the act of the 3rd day of June, 1878, it is still in force, and John Wagner is guilty of a violation of its provisions and liable to the penalty of twenty-five dollars.

The 24th section of the act of the 3d of June, 1878, only provided as before quoted that "it shall be lawful to fish with fyke or hoop nets the meshes of which are not less than one inch in diameter, in streams that are not inhabited by brook or speckled trout.

Its provisions are applicable to other streams (of which there are some in the State which have neither trout or bass); therefore the provisions of the 23d section of the act of May 5th, 1876, are not inconsistent or in conflict with any of the provisions of the act of June 3d, 1878, and not repealed by it.

It is, therefore, unlawful for any person to fish in the waters of Spring creek, or any other of the streams which are inhabited by speckled trout or black bass, or either of them, with any net or device in the nature thereof, the meshes of which are less than three inches. John Wagner has therefore violated the law, and if its stern demands were invoked he would have to suffer its penalties; but in his case we agree that there are such extenuating circumstances which ought in this case to exonerate him from its penalties. We are satisfied from the evidence given us that he did not intend to violate the law; that he, like many others who have read the act of June 3, 1878, supposed that it entirely supplemented the acts of May 1st, 1873, and of May 5th, 1876, and that it was lawful to fish in any stream with a net the meshes of which were not less than one inch. We have no doubt he was misled by others who construed the law to suit their own inclinations, persons who do little else than fish and who have been for several years past robbing our streams of the fish that the law was intended to protect for the benefit of all. We therefore recommend that in this case John Wagner be discharged upon payment of costs without fine.

OUR EUROPEAN LETTER.

PARIS IN SPRING—THE GINGER BREAD FAIR—PARISIAN SHOP GIRLS—WHERE TO "LOAF" AND HOW TO DO IT.

From our regular Correspondent.

PARIS, France, May 3.

One of the most animated spots in Paris is at present the Place du Hone and surrounding streets where the ginger bread fair is being held. The spectacle is one peculiar to Paris for no English or American fair ever presents quite the same animation as the "Faire aux Pains d'Epice." The ginger bread fair has moreover been favored this year by weather unusually delightful, and that surprisingly numerous class of people in Paris, who apparently have always a day to devote to open-air amusements, have flocked thitherward by tens of thousands. On the occasion when the writer visited the bustling and dusty spot there were certainly no less than two hundred thousand persons there, compressed into an almost compact mass, and pervading the entire fair from the Place du Trone very nearly to Vincennies. The sense of touch was kept in constant exercise, inasmuch as one could scarcely help remaining in rather close contact with one's immediate neighbors; a state of affairs which was agreeable or otherwise, according to the nature of the neighbors in question. Few people would willingly submit to be pressed by the crowd close up to an unsavory workman in a dingy blouse; but a number of very pretty grisettes, out for a holiday, visit the fair, and there is nothing peculiar unpleasant in obtaining that knowledge of their figure which is afforded by proximity so truly touching. Some people no doubt consider the pretty work girls as the chief attraction of the fair, and such may now see on the Place du Trone any number of retrousee noses and nicely shaped little heads, the said heads generally being unconfined by any hat or bonnet. Another feature of the fair is the enormous quantity of children which are being carried on the shoulders of their fathers and mothers, either because their infantine members easily give way to the fatigues of sight seeing or because it is only from that elevated position in life that they can behold the gaily decorated booths, or the entrance to the numberless places of amusements.

The physiognomy of Paris is as changable as that of pretty women. No observer who knows Paris can fail to have been struck by the various aspects which this strange and incomparable city assumes according to the seasons or the weather. It is, perhaps, the only town on the face of the earth where a man never need bone himself, and that, perhaps, is the cause of the joy we feel in returning to Paris after a prolonged absence. We foreigners know it, for it is the town we love best. Petersburg, Vienna, London have left us with pleasant memories, but we speak of Paris and of France with more fire and emotion, with a smile on our lips and sympathy in our voices. Paris is, indeed, a sort of keyboard, the harmonies of which are incessantly varied. Now the great artist, Spring, has appeared; the bright sun has driven away the clouds and fog of winter; the sky is blue; the streets are perfumed with violets and daffodils; the sparrows come and play impudently under the chair upon which you are sitting in the garden, or on the noble avenues of the Champs Elysees; the trees are bursting into leaf and flower and the delicate orange trees are being brought forth from their winter refuge to shed their sweet odors in the balmy air. The first rays of the spring sun at Paris produced marvelous effects; it is like a transformation scene executed by the stroke of a fairy's hand; but it is especially in the Champs-Elysees, along the boulevards, and in the Bois de Boulogne that its effects must be studied. Poetry.

Conflict and Victory.

Oh! Refuge of men worn and weary,
With suffering and sin oft distressed,
Couldst thou leave 'mid surroundings so dreary
Thy peace as a dying request?

To Thine ear comes the cry of great sorrow
That rings through this pitiless world;
And know'st Thou how oft with the morrow
To a deeper despair we are hurled?

For the dawn brings no light that can lead us,
The birds sing no songs that can cheer,
Nor does harvest give food that can feed us,
And the winter's gloom reigns through the year.

We've felt strange 'mid our kindred and neighbors,
Been lonely in thick haunts of men,
Had to rest on a stone from our labors,
And no visions to comfort us then.

We've been lured by the voice of the siren
And caught in her cruel embrace,
Have found that the heart may be iron,
Tho' beauty may shine in the face.

We are weary with chasing the shadows,
And bearing our burdens of care,
For our way has not lain through the meadows
We have chosen the dust and the glare.

Yet, Savior, on Thee in our anguish
We'll pillow our sore-stricken head,
We in sorrow of soul Thou didst vanquish
The foes that fill life with such dread.

We have lived for ourselves 'stead of others,
Sought in temples of pleasure our shrine,
Held no cup to the lips of our brothers,
Or with gall often mingled our wine.

We bless Thee, who cam'st down in glory
To suffer, to succor, to save;
By Thy cross to shine bright in life's story
And triumph o'er death and the grave.

We'll fret with the world then no longer;
It can bring to us nothing but bliss,
We love in our heart only stronger
To God and to man than it is.

—Good Words.

Our Story Teller.

WAS SHE A COWARD?

Mrs. Christie put her gold eyeglasses on, and looked long and critically at Josie Warren walking leisurely along on the bluff, with little Lacy Grosvenor beside her, and Flossie trotting on ahead, nearly obscured by her wide leghorn hat and her sand pail and shovel.

"A very pretty girl, and really quite stylish," she said, patronizingly. "I dare say she is quite a treasure, my dear? Where did you pick her up? She is really too pretty for a nursery governess."

Little Mrs. Grosvenor looked after Josie's retreating figure, a slight blush of consciousness on her face.

"It is certainly very absurd, Mrs. Christie, but I am actually afraid Claude is falling in love with her."

She gave a little hysterical laugh, partly on account of her own fears, partly because of the unfeigned horror on Mrs. Christie's face, as she laid down her glasses and looked the amazement and dismay she really felt.

"No! Doctor Carey in love with his sister's hired governess—and a nursery governess at that! Mabel, you horrify me!"

"There is nothing so terrible about it, at least so Claude says," she returned, disconsolately. "Of course Josie is a very refined girl, and undoubtedly very lovely in appearance and disposition. But—"

"I should think it was 'but,'" Mrs. Christie said, vigorously. "The idea of Claude Carey, with his position in society, in the medical world, with his wealth, his popularity, turning his attention to an obscure, nameless girl! Is your brother insane?"

Little Mrs. Grosvenor looked thoughtfully out on the bay, sparkling and dimpling in the hot July sun.

"I am not sure I think so much about such things, and of course Claude has an undoubted right to seek his happiness when and where he prefers. But Josie is rather peculiar. I mean she—not that I do not quite like her, but she is—she rather likes to affect little frightened airs, to appeal to people to assure her everything is all right, and particularly to Claude."

"Perhaps I don't quite understand you, Mabel. You mean to say Miss Warren is a coward, a baby, or simply airish and selfish?—either of which qualities condemn her."

Mrs. Grosvenor puckered up her pretty little forehead, then suddenly relaxed into a merry little laugh.

"Judge for yourself. The last day Claude ran down from his patients for a day, he happened to leave the key of that walnut case you have seen in the hall by his room in the rack, and Lacy unfastened it, not knowing it contained some ratner ghastly specimens of the human structure—things Claude had sent down to oblige one of his professional friends in the village; and Josie shrieked and fainted, and Claude was some time in restoring her."

Mrs. Christie looked stern and contemptuously.

"A pretty piece of acting, and very flimsy."

"She refuses to bathe, because she is afraid of the undertow. She will not go sailing or crabbing, for fear of being upset. She never rides, because the horses might run away; she is worse than either Lacy or Flossie. When it thunders and lightens, and, if even a caterpillar or spider gets on her she turns white as death. What is it, Mrs. Christie, fear or airishness?"

And that wise lady answered, solemnly:

"It is neither nervousness or cowardliness; it is disgusting affectation, because your brother happens to be a physician, who can be called to allay her agitation. I am surprised at Claude—surprised at his fancy for her."

And while this discussion was progressing, Josie Warren and the little Grosvenors were getting farther away down the breezy bluff, the brisk salt air bringing vivid roses to her cheeks, usually so daintily peachy in their tint.

She was certainly very lovely, and a credit to Dr. Carey's discriminating taste. She was slender and graceful, with a certain unconsciousness of manner that was her chief charm. There was just the most bewitching look of tender appeal in her soft gray eyes, and an air of frank dependence in everything she did—something almost indefinable—something that made you think of a clinging ivy vine, or the blush-roses that needed a trellis to support their fragrant bloom.

"You promised to take us to Lily Island, Miss Warren," Lacy said, coaxingly. "Can't we go now?"

"I'm afraid not," she said, pleasantly. "I did not ask your mother if she would allow us to walk so far; and besides, Lacy, I think she would enjoy going, too. Suppose we go back and see about it?"

* * * * * *

"To Lily Island? I'm not sure you had better go, children," Mrs. Grosvenor said. "It's a long walk and the sun is hot."

"But we needn't walk, mamma," Lacy urged eagerly. "Bertie Howland said he'd row you, and Flossie, and his Aunt Annie in his boat, and Miss Warren and I can walk, can't we, Miss Warren? We don't mind the sun; we like it, don't we, Miss Warren?"

"Aunt Annie," otherwise Mrs. Christie, looked pointedly at Josie.

"I dare say Miss Warren favors such an arrangement, but if there should come up a sudden shower as we had about this time yesterday, what would you do with her, Lacy?"

Josie laughed and turned pale nevertheless, for she was extremely sensitive to even wellbred ridicule on her weak point.

"I think we'll go, since Bertie is so kind, and lacy so anxious. They say Lilly Island is well worth a visit. If you will bring my shade hat and parasol, Miss Warren, I think we will start as soon as Master Bertie is ready."

And while Mrs. Christie, Mrs. Grosvenor and baby Flossie were rowed down over the lovely, sparkling bay by Bertie Howland's strong skillful hands, gallant little Lacy escorted Miss Warren on the walk that led to the narrow, sandy isthmus that connected the so-called Lily "Island" with the mainland.

Of course, the boating party had reached there first, and congratulated Josie and Lacy on having arrived safely, in a way that, although she knew was mere badinage, cut Josie's sensitive nature to the very quick.

But she put the painful feeling away as well as she could, and joined the little ones in search of shells with a zest that commanded even Mrs. Christie's respect and admiration.

Until, all at once, Bertie sprang up from the sands with a low, horrified cry.

"The tide is coming in! Jump into the boat as quick as you can! Come Lacy, Flossie! Oh, how did we all forget that the island is submerged every day at this hour, when the tide comes in?"

Josie stood still, very pale, while Mrs. Christie sprang up with an agility amazing for one of her years and avoirdupois, her portly face blanched.

"Submerged! Of course it is under water several hours every day, but I did not know when the tide came in to-day! Get in the boat, Mable, quickly. The tide is fearfully strong. I doubt if Bertie can row us in the face of it!"

But Mrs. Grosvenor sat as if bewildered, while Mrs. Christie climbed frantically in the little boat, rocking almost violently with each successive wave that boiled and foamed higher each minute.

Josie touched her on the shoulder.

"Please lose no time. Mrs. Grosvenor. It is true, the tide is coming in with terrible force and speed—there is not a moment to lose. I will assist you in the boat."

As she half supported, half forced her into the boat, while Flossie and Lacy crouched between the two ladies, leaving scarcely room for Bertie to wield his oars, certainly no space for her.

"There's no room for Miss Warren," he shouted, frantically. "Miss Warren, can you row? Take them over. I'll stay."

"I cannot row, Bertie," she said, in a low, hushed voice. "Get in quick and get them home, don't you see the squall coming up?"

"You mustn't leave Miss Warren," cried Mrs. Grosvenor, feebly. "Climb in and I'll take Lacy on my lap."

And then, Josie's strange, awfully calm answer,

"You are already overloaded. My added weight might swamp the boat. Go on. I can be better spared than any of you, if God so wills. If there is time"—and her sweet voice quivered—"you can send the boat back for me, Bertie. If not, I am not afraid to die."

The little boat crept laboredly off toward land and safety and happiness, and Josie Warren knew, with a deadly thrill of something at her heart, that before it reached the shore those cruel, crashing, seething waves would have swept relentlessly over Lilly Island,

She sat down with a calm that was utter dispair of hope. It was not fear—not the fear that a craven coward feels, but that shrinking from death and suffering which the bravest soldier experiences, and the thought that she would never, never would see Claude Carey again, that she would pass out of his life—perhaps only somewhat mourned.

And he would be with them all that night. He had told her when he was coming when he had taken her in his arms and kissed her, the day he went back to his duty to the sick.

That night! And while he would be there among them all, she would be dead—drowned.

And a cold shudder crept nearer her heart. The foamy surf thundered around the little spot of land that was growing continually smaller. The skies grew blacker, and the wind howled and shrieked like a demon. She dragged herself up off the sand, where the water had already met her feet, and crept onto a small rock a few feet higher.

But it was no use. The waves rose and she was alone with the bitterness of death.

And then, with a prayer on her lips she shut her eyes and covered her face with her hands, and when the cold waters closed nearer and nearer, her conscious mercifully left her, and——

While the little boat made the shore, and Mrs. Grosvenor staggered out on the beach with ashen lips and horror stricken eyes.

"Get somebody to go for Miss Warren—quick!" she gasped. "She is on Lily Island. I'll give you a hundred dollars if you'll bring her back."

She turned imploringly to a weather beaten old fisherman who was watching them.

"Lily Island! May God rest her soul!" and he lifted his ragged cap reverently. "Lily Island is five feet under water by this time.

And Mrs. Christie's face grew ashen with horror, while Mrs. Grosvenor stood clasping and unclasping her hands in a panic of frenzy.

"Josie! Josie!" she cried, in agony. "You have given your life for me and mine, and I dared to think you were a coward!"

* * * * * *

"She will not die," Dr. Carey said, quietly, with a great throb of rapturous, reverent thanksgiving in his voice, as he laid Josie's slender hand back on the coverlet of Mrs. Grosvenor's bed. "She has been very near the gates of death, but God did not demand the awful sacrifice. She will live."

And Josie did live, to learn that a party of fishermen had seen her on the little rocky point on the island, the waters within a yard of its summit, and found her in a deep faint, so like death that it was hours before she was restored to life, and love, and Doctor Carey.

For the Fair Sex.

Bonnet ribbons are wide.

Striped straw hats are stylish.

Parasols are very large this season.

Lanuedoc lace fichus and ruches are exceedingly fashionable.

Japanese designs and colors are seen in many of the new broches.

Buttons are rather smaller than those worn during the past season.

Thin dresses will be elaborately trimmed with torchon and pointe d' esprit laces.

Cashmere colored laces will be extensively used for trimming fancy straw bonnets.

Vests are less worn than heretofore, still they can scarcely be said to be out of fashion.

To have a finely painted fan and parasol is to be just now both aesthetic and fashionable.

Flowers in large clusters are taking the place of feathers for trimming both hats and bonnets.

Self-trimmings of all kinds are worn, box-pleatings and shell trimmings being especially liked.

Shirring has a new lease of favor, and is employed on collars, plastron, sleeves and fronts of dresses.

For street wear the color, in gloves, most used are wood, mastic, the shades of steel, and Quaker gray, and black.

A popular style of overskirt, which is independent of the skirt itself, is very short in front, long at the back, and very buffant.

"Serim" is the name of a coarse white linen batiste used in combination with antique and mecici lace for ladies' summer dresses.

Black satin parasols will be very fashionable. Many of these are lined with light foulard silk, and are edged with deep chenille fringe.

A fine plisse of dark red satin is placed under the skirt trimmings of many of the new costumes, thus forming a very pretty finish to to skirt.

Mitts are established in the good graces of all who have pretty and delicate hands. They are now made in all the most delicate tints, as well as in white and black.

Open work black jet passementerie is used as a perpendicular inserting in the sleeves of black grenadine and silk dresses. The material is always cut cut underneath.

Coat basques are very fashionable, so also is the shirred or marquise basque, which has the skirt set on a little below the waist line. These, however, are used chiefly for handsome dresses.

A great many round, untrimmed skirts are worn in corduroy, velvet, velveteen and in striped velvets. Cloth jackets and overskirts are worn with these, but they are chiefly seen with the surtout.

Local Small Talk.

—It will soon be time to think up a route for a summer "excurt."

—The festive oyster has stepped to the rear and the clam is now trump.

—The horse chestnut crop promises to be large, which is good news to the boys.

—Straw hat dealers have done a rushing business during the past few days.

—The strawberry and ice cream festival season will shortly be inaugurated.

—The jumping rope season is here, and undertakers are on the lookout for victims.

—The art of letting other people alone is one that a great many will never be able to acquire.

—There has been an unusually large number of sudden deaths in Centre county this season.

—An Erie editor says "Talk is cheap." He evidently never had much to do with a lawyer.

—Journalism is booming in Altoona. The Call will shortly begin the publication of a Sunday edition.

—Editor Kurtz, of the Centre Reporter, poked his head in at our sanctum door Thursday, said "hello" and vanished.

—It is said that the "15" game has just struck Millheim. They'll have greater need of that new graveyard than ever.

—Iron is falling all over the State—in price, we mean. Iron that sold at $40 per ton a few weeks since is now down to $25.

—Miss Bella Rankin, of this place, is visiting friends and relatives in Lock Haven and Hughesville, and expects to be absent several weeks.

—Few editors live to be a hundred and fifty years old. The good are bound to die young. Therefore, we don't expect to see the next centennial.

—Boys don't seem to be so eager to gobble up cigar butts from the street as they were a couple of years ago. This must be one of the signs of good times.

—The work on the Tyrone and Lewisburg railroad is being pushed forward. The rails are now being laid between Tyrone and the Pennsylvania Furnace.

—Here is the way a Kansas grocery man advertises: If you have a dollar to spare I want it and will tie up as many goods for it as any man that wears hair.

—Over six weeks of the trout season gone and not a single marvelous fish story yet. If some one doesn't come to the front before long, we'll have to doctor up a yarn ourselves.

—James B. Bumbaugh, the Harrisburg man who plead guilty in three indictments for robbing the mails while acting as postal agent between Harrisburg and Pittsburg, will be a boarder at the penitentiary for three years.

—We find the following in the Huntingdon Local News: "L. L. Brown has a spanking team, which he drove from Bellefonte to this place on Saturday in twelve hours." There's a big joke sandwiched in here somewhere.

—John Emory and Al. Brady, two of the Bush House waiters, went up into the Muncy mountains Thursday to gather flowers, and related some marvelous tales on their return. They were chased all over the mountain by big snakes (in their minds), some of them ten feet long, and from all accounts narrowly escaped being chawed up by muskrats down here at the lime kiln, although we can't imagine why muskrats should congregate about a lime kiln. Taken altogether, it was a terrible time.

—Have street pedestrians no rights that persons engaged in washing windows are bound to respect? It would seem not. Thursday morning a man on Howard street came very near being washed away through a woman's carelessness. She was sitting half way out of the window and dashing water right and left, about two quarts of it coming down on top of the man's head, who was passing beneath. Perhaps it would be a good idea for the ladies to display a red flag on such occasions, or hire a small boy to stand on watch and warn people to take the middle of the street.

—In alluding to the call for a meeting of the executive committee of Juniata Valley Printers' Association, the Bedford Enquirer says: "We would suggest to the committee that if it is decided to hold a reunion this year, do not come to Bedford if you do not wish the Cresson fiasco of last year repeated. It is not that we do not desire to receive the printers of the valley, but knowing the dissatisfaction engendered last year, we would avoid a repetition of the same. This is for the greatest good of the greatest number." The views expressed by the Enquirer are endorsed by several other editors belonging to the association, who think that, if the picnic is to be a success, it should not be held at or near any summer resort.

—We have received the following somewhat remarkable communication from Milesburg. The author evidently intended to say something mean about the "Judg," but we don't know whether he has succeeded or not:

"Milesburg is noted for boys runing around the squair in a short time but the judg of the runing Mr Jodun made a grand mistake in his dission he over looked the matter because he is under the weather at the present time the first runner made it in 35s and the second made it in 35 seconds but the dission was on the first man the judg had better keep his nib out of other peoples business also he had better mind the eleventh commandment (that is) mind his own business

What Ought to be Done.

A handsome dwelling house or business block ought to be built on the vacant lot adjoining McCafferty's building on High street. It would greatly improve the appearance of that part of town.

The railroad company ought to employ a flagman at the depot crossing in this place. Teams have narrowly escaped being run over by passing trains at this point because of no warning signal being displayed.

That treacherous hole in the sidewalk near Mills' barber shop ought to be repaired. The number of sprained ankles caused by this man trap is already large, and the victims are beginning to use strong language.

The boardwalk leading to the water works ought to be strengthened in several places with a new foundation to prevent it sliding into the creek. A day's work will put it in shape and make it secure.

The practice of selling liquor to minors in Bellefonte ought to be stopped. We have heard several complaints made in regard to this matter of late.

A number of street crossings about town that have sunk below the surface, and are covered with mud and water at every rain, ought to be raised to the proper height and then kept there.

A half-circle gallery ought to be built in the Opera House, and orchestra chairs ought to take the place of the old-fashioned benches now in use. Should these improvements be made the leading theatrical troupes in the country would visit us.

A band stand for use of Mountain City Band ought to be erected in some suitable locality in town. Then we could have an open air concert once a week during the summer which would be highly appreciated by our citizens.

A railing ought to be erected along the creek on Water street from the High street bridge to Lamb street.

The street lamps ought to lighted on dark nights even if there is a moon behind the clouds. Everybody will agree with us in this.

Once more we say that owners of cows ought to keep them off the street and out of mischief. If this matter is not attended to flower gardens and shade trees will suffer all summer.

The Y. M. C. A. Flourishing.

Of all the public institutions in Bellefonte none are more worthy of support from our citizens than the Young Men's Christian Association. The good accomplished by this association in various ways, from year to year, cannot be estimated, and it is the duty of every good citizen to work for its maintenance. The association we are pleased to say, is in a very flourishing condition at the present time, owing to the help and encouragement it has received from our citizens and the exertions of its officers and members, and we hope it may continue to flourish and carry on the good work it is engaged in.

The average attendance at the regular meetings of the association during the past five months was as follows: December, 23; January, 38; February, 34; March, 30; April, 16 As will be seen the attendance during the five months, with the exception of April, was very fair, which shows that the members are deeply interested in the meetings, and are working hard to keep up the interest in the organization. They should receive the aid and encouragement of all our citizens who feel an interest in the moral training of their children.

Prof. Phillippi's Adventure.

Prof. Phillippi, of Reading, formerly of this place, and who made an engagement to travel with Forepaugh's circus during the present season, made an ascension from Washington, D. C., one day last week and had a pretty rough time of it. We don't know whether the Lock Haven Journal man interviewed Forepaugh's bill poster or not, but yesterday's issue of that paper contains the following particulars: "On descending towards the earth he found himself dragging through a clump of cedar trees, but managed to strike terra firma on the famous battle field of Bull Run. Taking in the position at a glance, he managed with the assistance of two colored men there to hold the balloon in a few moments, meanwhile endeavoring to reach the valve and permit the gas to escape. Just then the man, thinking the balloon would take them up, let go the rope, and up it shot into mid air and sailed about an hour, finally descending at the village of Rockville, Va. After endeavoring to turn off the gas, the professor found himself dragged with the balloon until the rope caught in the fork of a tree, and finally slipped out of his hand, cutting and bruising it very severely. The professor arrived in Reading Friday and is to be congratulated upon his escape, while his balloon is perfectly uninjured. The Forepaugh engagement is broken, and Prof. Phillipi intends in future to make ascensions on his own account."

Ferguson Township Soldiers' Club.

The fourth regular meeting of the Soldiers' Club of Ferguson township for the election of officers of the Club for the ensuing year was held in Academy Hall, at Pine Grove, on Saturday evening, May 1st. After roll call, the following officers were elected by ballot: President, Geo. Eckel; Marshal, W. H. Fry; Secretary, W. D. Port; Treasurer, Charles Smith; Color Bearer, D. S. Erb; Color Guard, Nick Patterson and David Crebs, both one-armed soldiers.

The members of the Club extend a cordial invitation to all soldiers and citizens to meet with them at the various cemeteries in Ferguson township on Decoration Day, Saturday, May 29th, to participate with them in the ceremony of decorating the graves of deceased comrades.

A Probably Fatal Accident.

John Kelly, of Snow Shoe, a son of Mr. Patrick Kelly, met with what will probably prove a fatal accident Thursday while at work at the mines in that place. He had been engaged in unloading sand from a car at mine No. 8, and was in the act, so we are informed, of coupling his car to another to be removed by the engine when the accident occurred. When the cars met the concussion threw him from the platform, and he fell between the cars. The train was moving and before he could be extricated from this perilous position the wheel of a heavily loaded car passed over him, cutting his right arm off near the body. It is thought the unfortunate man cannot survive. Dr. Hibler, of this place, was sent for and left on the 5 o'clock train.

Dog Law.

The following may be of interest to the owners of dogs in this community: "If anybody is attacked on any highway by a dog, the party has a right to kill the dog, and the owner can be held accountable for any injury inflicted by the animal. Even on the premises of an owner of a dog, should a party be attacked and injured, after endeavoring to protect himself, the owner can be held accountable for the injuries inflicted, provided it can be shown that at the time he was in pursuit of business or on a friendly visit. If a dog by barking at passing horses or vehicles occasions any damage, its owner is liable for the loss sustained. Thus the law very properly affords ample protection for loss or injury caused by any dog."

A Little Folks' Reception.

Master Oscar Myers, son of the proprietor of the Bush House, entertained his young friends with a royal supper at that popular hotel Thursday evening. Elaborate preparations were made to receive the young folks, and we doubt not the occasion proved a very pleasant one to all present. The table which the guests were to occupy was set in the spacious dining hall, and was tastefully arranged by head waiter Emory. It was handsomely decorated with flowers and bunting, and presented such and attractive and inviting appearance, and displayed so many tempting viands, that Mr. Hoppes, who escorted us in to take a peep at it, had hard work to prevent us from taking a seat and "wading in."

—A number of Bellefonters intend to visit Williamsport to witness the Knights Templar demonstration on the 27th.

NEW ENTERPRISE.

ALEXANDER & CO.,

Agricultural Implement AND SEED STORE,

BELLEFONTE, PA.

They mean by this all the name imports, that is, to deal in and to furnish to farmers at the lowest possible price everything in the shape of an agricultural implement that farmers use, including SEEDS of all kinds.

At present we have on hand and are the authorized agents for the sale of the OLIVER CHILLED PLOW, made at South Bend, Ind. It is the best chilled plow now made; also the Keystone and iron beam plows, made at Centre Hall. No better plows than these can be had for the same amount of money. Also the Centre Hall Complanter. We need say nothing about the merits of this planter, as the 2000 now in use in Centre county demonstrates them to be the best.

HARROWS and CULTIVATORS of the latest improved patterns.

MOWERS, REAPERS and GRAIN BINDERS.—Of these we sell the Osborne, either as separate mowers, combined reapers and mowers, single harvesters, or as combined reapers and binders.

THE WHEELER, No. 6, as a combined machine, is the best machine of the kind in the market.

The greatest improvement of the age is the NORRISTOWN GLEANER AND BINDER. Call and see it. It is wonderfully perfect.

Any boy twelve years old, with one horse, will follow and bind all the grain that any reaper with side delivery will cut. It not only binds but gleans, and will save the price of the machine in one year by taking up from the stubble that which is now lost.

The McSHERRY GRAIN DRILL either with or without broadcast hoes, with or without fertilizer and seed sowing attachments. It is the best grain drill for all purposes in the market.

The GEISER THRESHER AND SEPARATOR.—The reputation of this machine is so well established that we can say nothing about it that the people do not know. Any person wanting one, or in need of repairs for those now in the county, please call.

Wagons, Carriages, Buggies and Phaetons.—We are agents for the sale of the celebrated CONKLIN WAGON, the reputation of which is so well established; also of the CORTLAND PLATFORM SPRING WAGONS, Carriages, Phaetons and Buggies. All are warranted. Call and see specimens and examine catalogues as to styles and prices before buying elsewhere. Catalogues furnished on application.

PLASTER and FERTILIZERS.—Cayuga Plaster, finely ground, as good as the best Nova Scotia, at the low price of $7.50 per ton. Peruvian Guano sold on orders only. Phosphates always on hand. Special manures for different crops sold upon orders at manufacturers' prices.

POWDER.—We are Dupont's agents. Blasting, Sporting and Rifle Powder on hand and sold at wholesale prices; also fuse.

GRAIN.—After the growing crops harvest we will be prepared to pay the highest market price for all kinds of grain.

COAL.—Our yard is always stocked with the best Anthracite Coal which we sell at lowest prices.

LIME.—We make the best white lime in the State. Its properties for mechanical and agricultural purposes excel all others.

FAIRBANKS' SCALES.—We are their agents for Centre county and will supply all parties wishing good and true scales at their lowest prices.

We extend an invitation to everybody in want of anything in our line to call at our store rooms, opposite the Bush House, and see what we have, and learn from those in attendance more particularly the scope of our business. ALEXANDER & CO.

"Throw Physic to the Dogs."

DR. HALL'S ELECTRIC BELTS.

For the cure of all nervous diseases without the least derangement of the patient's habits or daily occupation. This appliance exerts powerful and beneficial influence throughout the whole frame: is applicable to either sex, and affords instantaneous relief in the following diseases:

Rheumatism,
Neuralgia,
Dyspepsia,
Lumbago,
General Debility,
Headache,
Dizziness,
Impotency,
Spermatorrhœa,
Sexual Exhaustion,
Self Abuse,
Premature Decay, &c.

These belts are the result of the profound research and experiment in Electro-Therapeutics, and by their peculiar construction, a continuous "galvanic current" is generated, which permeates the whole frame, and especially envelops the suffering parts with its gentle influences. This current assimilates closer to the nervous fluid than anything known to medical science—hence its potency as a curative agent.

Most especially is the application of electricity in this form beneficial to those disorders arising from youthful indiscretion, sexual excess, or dissipations of any kind, whereby the procreative powers are lessened and Impotency threatened. No false delicacy or sense of shame should prevent the sufferer, an object to restless nights, nightmare, dreams, palpitation of the heart, neuralgia, dimness of sight and other symptoms of nervous and physical debility, applying to the undersigned for relief.

These belts are light, perfectly flexible, and easily adjusted, all of which, together with their cheapness, renders them superior to any other form, for the application of electricity, medicinally.

☞ 50,147 of these belts were sold in Europe in the year 1876.

"Electricity is Life,"

And no remedy can be compared to it for the treatment of IMPOTENCE and loss of nervous vitality.

This belt is recommended by the most eminent physiologists of this country and Europe.

"Ingenious, wonderful—a deathblow to the old system of drugging."—London (Eng.) Lancet.

"You have perfected a great blessing on suffering humanity."—Dr. Richardson, London, England.

"Wonderful for the restoration of exhausted vitality."—Dr. Ferrier, London, England.

"I cheerfully recommend Dr. Hall's Electric Belt, and consider it one of the greatest blessings to mankind that has been put before the public."—Dr d' Barr, Paris, France.

Cathartic Pills

Combine the choicest cathartic principles in medicine, in proportions accurately adjusted to secure activity, certainty, and uniformity of effect. They are the result of years of careful study and practical experiment, and are the most effectual remedy yet discovered for diseases, caused by derangement of the stomach, liver, and bowels, which require prompt and effectual treatment. AYER'S PILLS are specially applicable to this class of diseases. They act directly on the digestive and assimilative processes, and restore regular healthy action. Their extensive use by physicians in their practice, and by all civilized nations, is one of the many proofs of their value as a safe, sure, and perfectly reliable purgative medicine. Being compounded of the concentrated virtues of purely vegetable substances, they are positively free from calomel, or any injurious properties, and can be administered to children with perfect safety.

AYER'S PILLS are an effectual cure for Constipation or Costiveness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Loss of Appetite, Foul Stomach and Breath, Dizziness, Headache, Loss of Memory, Numbness, Biliousness, Jaundice, Rheumatism, Eruptions and Skin Diseases, Dropsy, Tumors, Worms, Neuralgia, Colic, Gripes, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Gout, Piles, Disorders of the Liver, and all other diseases resulting from a disordered state of the digestive apparatus.

As a Dinner Pill they have no equal.

While gentle in their action, these PILLS are the most thorough and searching cathartic that can be employed, and never give pain unless the bowels are inflamed, and then their influence is healing. They stimulate the appetite and digestive organs; they operate to purify and enrich the blood, and impart renewed health and vigor to the whole system.

The Milton Disaster.

The borough of Milton is situated in Northumberland county, in the beautiful valley of the West Branch of the Susquehanna, in the midst of an agricultural region famous for its richness and fertility, and contains a population of about three thousand people. Last Friday these people were in peace and apparent security; it was the hour of noon; the busy wheels of industry had stopped their ponderous breathing for awhile and the tired laborer and busy matron were enjoying their mid day meal with no thought of what an hour would bring forth. In the framing shop of Murray, Dougal & Co.'s car works a spark strayed from confinement and fell upon the combustible material. Everywhere around a little fire was started, which was fanned in a moment, as it were, into a furious, devouring flame by the high wind at the time prevailing. The people were suddenly awakened from their fancied security, and made every effort to stay the progress of the fiery fiend, but to no purpose. Three hours after it broke out the whole town was at its mercy, and the frightened inhabitants fleeing in every direction for safety. So rapid was the spread of the fire and so intense the heat that little time was given to save property, and what little was snatched away in time became, in part at least, the prey of the ghouls who always hover around such scenes to prey upon the unfortunate sufferers. Many articles were stolen, and one lady is said to have lost $60,000 in government bonds. The wife of Dr. Cyrus Brown was badly burned, a man by the name of Augenz was burned to death, and a Mrs. Mary Fullmer, formerly of Lewisburg, met the same fate. Several children are missing, and are supposed to be burned. At five o'clock, five hours after noon, the fire exhausted itself for want of material to feed upon, and six hundred and sixty-six houses were burned, and fifteen hundred people were homeless, camping on the ground on an island near by and in the surrounding fields. The night was very cold and these homeless people suffered intensely. As soon as possible provisions and clothing were forwarded to them. The people of Harrisburg raised at once $1,200, and Danville sent a car load of provisions. On Saturday provisions were sent from Bellefonte, and during the day large quantities of clothing and provisions were got ready to be forwarded as soon as transportation can be had. Everything is being done that can be to relieve the immediate wants of the people of Milton.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

—Full sets of undergarments at Lyon & Co.'s.

—Just opened, a big lot of hats at Lyon & Co.'s. from 35c up.

—Day's Kidney Pad—beside it all other remedies dwindle into comparative insignificance.

—Prof. Smith's handsome new residence at the college will soon be ready for occupancy.

—J. B. Musser and Allison Miller, of Millheim, have gone to seek their fortunes in the wide west.

—R. M. Magee, Esq., has laid a new and substantial sidewalk before his residence on Ridge street.

—To the farmers: At Harris' hardware store you can get repairs for all the leading reapers and mowers.

—There was quite a heavy frost on Thursday night, and tender shrubs were slightly nipped in some parts of the county.

—The Brown Brothers, at the Butts House, will begin to-day the delivery of bottled Rochester lager by wagon. Orders promptly filled.

—If you want to look stylish buy your summer suit of Samuel Lewins at the Philadelphia Branch. Satisfaction guaranteed.

—To the farmers: Examine your mowers and reapers in time and send your orders to James Harris & Co. for all needed repairs.

—The "wandering minstrels," who visited this place two or three weeks ago giving street concerts, are now holding forth in Clearfield.

—The Watchman intimates that the Democrat is to be turned into a religious journal. We don't know what authority it has for the intimation.

—John J. Potter, Esq., has just returned from inspecting the extensive ore mines of Study & Co., on the Shoenberger property, in Huntingdon county.

—The Muncy mountains were almost obscured from view yesterday by the dense clouds of smoke that rolled down the valley from the mountain fires.

—Samuel Lewins, at the Philadelphia branch, is constantly receiving new goods in gentlemen's and boys' clothing. It will do your eyes good to go and examine them.

—Miss Annie Lyon, after an absence of six months in Philadelphia, during which time her attention was devoted to the study of music, returned home on Wednesday.

—Guess the polar wave went through here Friday. The air was so chilly that a number of our business men were induced to get out their stoves once more and fire up.

—The grounds belonging to the public school property seem to have been turned into a cow pasture. We noticed several bovines roaming around in the enclosure yesterday.

—A brakeman on Saturday's local freight came sailing into town with a plug hat on, looking as important as the driver of a circus band wagon. The B. E. V. brakemen are getting "tony."

—The entertainment to be given in the Court House to-morrow evening by the Choral and Orchestral Society promises to be a rich treat to lovers of that style of music. No one shou'd miss it.

—A fire aboard the freight train is getting to be an everyday occurrence. A coal car on Saturday's freight came in blazing furiously, and it took ten or fifteen minutes with the hose to extinguish it.

—We have received a copy of the Daily Announcer, a new sheet just started out west somewhere. If cut lengthways it makes two tolerably good wrappers; that's about all we've got to say of it.

—That ugly hole in the pavement near Mills' barber shop, which tripped up so many passers by, has been repaired at last. People can now sail over the walk in the night without being obliged to carry a lantern.

—The Philadelphia branch clothing house, Samuel Lewins, manager, is as full of spring and summer clothing as a nut is full of meat. The goods are all new style, well made and of good material. Call at the branch before purchasing elsewhere.

—Dr. Jones' Cream Camphor, that excellent liniment, that received a prize medal at the State Fair of 1879, is never-failing in the cure of rheumatism, neuralgia, and all complaints requiring an outward application. Sold by all druggists. 20-1m —The fees of the sheriffs of the different counties of Pennsylvania, beginning January 1, 1881, will be much less than those received by the present incumbents. The present fee on writs is $1; the new fee bill allows only 75 cents, and reviewing the bill throughout the fees will be 25 per cent. less. With plenty of money to loan by parties and less fees the sheriff's office will not be so lucrative as it has been for the past nine years.

—Messrs. John P. Logan, of Philadelphia, Marcus Huling, of Oil City, and Willis J. Huling, in company with W. W. Curtin, of Philadelphia, son of ex-Gov. Curtin, were in town Friday on business relating to the disposal of the car works. The gentlemen went over the premises on a tour of inspection, and expressed themselves as very much pleased with the location and buildings. Nothing definite is yet known of their intentions.

—Rev. Miller, from Japan, preached before the Presbyterian society of this place on Sunday. His text was from Ezekiel 37:3, 4, 5. His remarks were very interesting. Among other things he said that eight years ago there was not a Christian church in Japan, but now there are thirty-two churches and a large number of Sunday schools. A great work is being done in that country, so lately opened to the refining influences of Christianity.

—Commercial men and others who travel from place to place like to put up at hotels having a home-like appearance about them. The Garman House, of this place, is just such a hotel. The proprietors are pleasant gentlemen to deal with, and always study the wants and comforts of their guests. The house is large and commodious, and accommodations complete.

—Rev. John Hewitt delivered an interesting lecture before the pupils of Mr. J. M. Duncan's private school at the public school building, Friday afternoon. Quite a number of visitors were present by invitation. This was the first of a series of lectures to be given before the school under the auspices of Mr. Duncan.

—People will flock to Washington to see the great Hanlan-Courtney race, and whether Courtney wins or not the people will still continue to flock to Sechler & Co.'s for their supplies of groceries. No matter what happens the people are bound to have pure goods, and they know that at Sechler & Co.'s is the place to get them.

—The fire fiend made a disastrous descent on Snow Shoe Friday night and totally destroyed the large saw mill of Trullinger & Co., operated, we are informed, by Harrisburg parties. The building was all ablaze when discovered, making all efforts to save it useless. A number of sheds, used for storing lumber, were also burned.

—A movement is on foot among some of the young men in this place to organize a bucket brigade to assist in extinguishing fires. A meeting will be held some time next week to take the matter into consideration. The boys should be encouraged in their efforts in this direction.

—Nothing new in market Saturday morning. An abundance of beef was offered, but the amount of butter and eggs brought in did not begin to supply the demand. A few bushels of apples, about the size of hen's eggs, were offered but found few purchasers. There were eight wagons in market.

—From our Eagleville correspondent we learn that the large tobacco house of P. B. Crider, located on his farm at Eagleville, was burned to the ground on Sunday night with five tons of tobacco, valued at $1,000. The building was insured. It is supposed to have been the work of an incendiary.

—The following remarkable sign swings before an establishment in Zion:

J. Fearer.
Grain crtrl for sal here.
Is the best in yous now.

After some study we have come to the conclusion that the man is in the grain cradle business.

—People who buy their groceries at Sechler & Co.'s live long and die happy. We suppose this is because their groceries are free from impurities and never hurt any one. Therefore everybody should buy their groceries of this firm.

—The young man, John Kelley, of Snow Shoe, whose right arm was taken off at the shoulder by being run over by a heavily loaded car at the mines on Thursday last, died on Saturday morning from his injuries.

—All skin diseases readily yield to the magnetic influence of VanDyke's Sulphur Soap. Physicians recommend and use it. 20-1m —The frost on Thursday night played the mischief with John Wagner's early beans. John was bemoaning his loss up street yesterday morning, with a long face, that he was not only out about twelve dollars on his beans, but a heavy hatchet descended on his big toe and split it in twain. The fates seem to be against John lately.

—The Hollidaysburg Register considers Forepaugh's show a humbug, and says the people returned to their homes after the performance disgusted. If that's the case, we don't care a picayune if the big caravan did give us the go-by. Bellefonte don't want any humbug in her's.

—The May court of quarter sessions, at Lock Haven, had to quit business and shut up shop after a session of two and a half hours, for want of material to work on. A very healthy state of affairs as regards the morals of little Clinton.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

SUNBURY, Pa., May 15.—The scene at Milton this morning beggars description. Nothing remains except the black and desolate ruins of the once prosperous town. The people spent last night in the houses that were left standing, principally the nail works and planing mill. The entire number of buildings destroyed was 666, and only two places of business escaped destruction. The vaults and books of the bank were uninjured. The people of the town are almost entirely destitute. Provisions have been pouring into the town from the surrounding country. The body of the strange man who was burned to death last night has been identified this morning. He was 85 years old and was attempting to save the stable of the poorhouse. The principal losses are as follows: William Raber, tanner, $135,000; Heiney, Schroyer & Co., $150,000; academy of music, $30,000; E. Krouse & Bro., $80,000, insured for $30,000; C. B. Krouser, shoe manufacturer, $60,000; R. Smith, furniture, $35,000, insurrnce, $1,500; car shops, $200,000, insured for $70,000; Huff House, $35,000, insured for $15,000; United States Hotel, $10,000; Broadway House, $20,000; Cyrus Brown, druggist, $30,000; A. L. Wagner, $80,000, insurance, $40,000; Swartz's marble yard, $15,000, insurance, $10,000; Miltonian office, $5,000, insurance, $2,500; Independent office, $6,000, insurance, $4,100; J. F. Gauger & Son, clothiers, $20,000, insurance, $5,000; Haag, hardware, $5,000, insurance $1,200; Samuel Driefus, clothier, $6,000, insurance $3,000; P. Henry, clothing, $4,000, insurance $2,000; Oppenheimer, notions, $6,000, insurance $2,000; G. W. Evans, merchant tailor, $15,000, insurance $5,000; Rice, clothing, $4,000, insurance $2,000; G. Brown, butcher, $20,000, no insurance; ex-Senator Bound's fine residence, $10,000. The churches destroyed and the losses thereon are as follows: Reformed, $18,000; Catholic, $10,000; Baptist, $15,000; Methodist, $17,000; Covenanters, $8,000; Evangelical, $6,000; Presbyterian, $10,000, insured for $4,000. The insurance companies represented by two agents lose as follows: American, Philadelphia, $100,000; Girard, $75,000; Phoenix of London, $50,000; Lycoming, $100,000; Fire association of Philadelphia, $29,000; Farmers' of York, $24,000; Franklin, $40,000; North American, $40,000; Ætna, $125,000, and two Danville companies, $13,000.

The aggregate loss is now estimated at $1,600,000.

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—The following telegram was received here to-day:

"HARRISBURG, Pa., May 15.—To the Associated Press of Pennsylvania: Although liberal contributions have been made to Milton, the advices are that they will be exhausted. Knives, forks and coffee pots, clothing and blankets are most needed. The emergency is very pressing. They will give twice who will give at once. H. M. HOYT, Governor."

ALBION, N. Y., May 15.—Chief Justice Sanford E. Church died suddenly here at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon of apoplexy. He has been ailing for several days, but went to his office as usual yesterday morning and wrote an opinion. After dinner he stopped into the Orleans county national bank, and while there was taken with a pain in his chest. He was driven to his residence and alighted from the carriage and went to his room without assistance. A physician was called in but before medical aid cold be administered the judge struggled somewhat, turned slightly purple and fell over on his side dead. The community feels a severe shock, as Judge Church was beloved by all.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 15.—The autopsy to-day shows that Charlie A. Branley, six years old, son of Wm. F. Branley, of Russel, who was found dead in the stream back of the house on Thursday, was murdered. Blood found in the barn indicated that the deed was done there, and the body dragged to the brook. The boy has shown great fear of his step mother, who has two children of her own, and has often said she had frequently beaten him. This and other circumstances lead to the belief that the mother committed the crime, and she is closely watched to await the result. Judicial examination on Monday.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 16, '80.—On or about the 27th of December last a peddler named Marks and his brother, also a peddler, started from Indiana town, Indiana county, and separated to take different routes along which to sell their goods, appointing a time and place where they would again come together. Marks' brother failed to meet him, and the former inquired if he had been seen along the proposed route. He found that when last seen his brother was in the company of one Sweitzer, who was arrested on Friday. He is said to have confessed in substance as follows: That the peddler had been killed and that he had got $400 in money and some goods, and that three brothers named White were accomplices in the murder. One of the White brothers was arrested, and it was demanded of him that he should show where the body of the murdered man was concealed. He refused to do so and his captors gave him intoxicating drink, with the hope of inducing him to reveal the whereabouts of the hidden body. This, it is said, had the desired effect, and he told his custodians where they could find the object of their search. They proceeded to the place, a pit of saw dust at what is called the Bay Mill, in Susquehanna township, Cambria county, between Plattville and Cherrytree, and found the body of the murdered man buried at the depth of three feet in the sawdust. It is said that the murdered man's neck had been broken, and other marks of violence were visible. Further details of the affair have not been learned yet.

A New Method in Medicine.

By this new method every sick person can get a package of the vegetable compound, Kidney-Wort, and prepare for themselves six quarts of medicine. It is a specific cure for Kidney Diseases, Liver Complaint, Constipation and Piles, and a grand tonic for Females.

The railway system is rapidly extending in Japan, two lines having been recently completed in the island of Niphon and a third in the island of Yesso, the most northerly of the Japanese group.

A Splendid Dairy

is one that yields its owner a good profit through the whole season. But he must supply the cows with what they need in order for them to be able to keep up their product. When their butter gets light in color he must make it "gilt edged" by using Wells, Richardson & Co's Perfected Butter Color. It gives the golden color of June, and adds five cents per pound to the value of the butter.

Cards are said to have been invented in France in 1391, to amuse Charles IV. during the intervals of a melancholy disorder. Piquet and all the early games are French.

A Household Need.

They Work Together.

When your system gets out of tune and you feel completely played out, it is pretty certain that you need a medicine to act on both the Kidneys and liver for these important organs work together in freeing the system of its waste, and keeping up the tone. Then take Kidney-Wort, for this is just what it does, for it is both diuretic and cathartic.

It can almost be asserted that St. Jacobs Oil works wonders. Shortly before the new year, when I visited my family in Mitchell, I found my son Edward, a lad little more than ten years old, very sick. He suffered with Rheumatism, and so terribly that he was perfectly stiff in the limbs, could not possibly walk, and had to be carried from place to place. At once I sent for some St. Jacobs Oil, used it according to directions, and in a few days could see evidence of considerable improvement. On the tenth of this month I again visited my family and was astonished to find him well and hearty. He once more has fresh color in his face and can go to school again. Whenever the old trouble threatens to return, relief is immediately secured by the use of the celebrated St. Jacobs Oil. From sheer joy over this result I cannot withhold recommending St. Jacobs Oil to suffering humanity as a true benefactor.

Vine Culture and Wine Making.

Mr. Alfred Speer, of Passaic, N. J., so long and favorably known as the wine man of New Jersey, expects a larger yield of grapes this year than usual, and has reduced the price of his four year old Port so as to bring it within the reach of the poorer families who need a pure and rich wine for medicinal purposes. Mr. Speer's mode of fermenting and keeping his wine differs from the usual methods. This is the reason why it is so much superior in quality; but it requires four years management and change of temperature in order to make such a perfect fine wine as this is; the knowledge of changing to various temperatures at different times, and at the right time, is where he has the advantage of getting so rich a wine without the use of liquor. Large quantities of Speer's Port Grape Wine has been ordered to South America, and even to London and Paris. Physicians recommend it as superior to most European wines. It is dealt in largely by druggists.—Daily Express. For sale by John Harris. 20-2t

Is a sure cure for all the ordinary diseases of Horses, Cattle, Sheep and Swine. It cures and prevents Chicken Cholera. Your cow is certain to yield 25 per cent more and better milk and butter. Stock fattens on one-fourth less feed.

Being in possession of a large number of excellent testimonials, I subjoin a few:

I have been using your Cattle Powder for horses, cows, chickens and pigs, and find it a first class thing.—GEORGE BOSS, Germantown, Pa.

Please send me half a gross of Cattle Powder. I have used two packs on my cow and chickens. The cow gave nearly twice the quantity of milk that she did before, and gave twice the amount of butter. My chickens were dying, but were cured immediately after I had used the powder. Yours truly, JONAS PASCOE, Dallas, N. C.

I have used and compared your Cattle Powder with all others, and must say it is the best for horses, cattle, sheep, hogs, &c. I have tried it on poultry for many complaints, with success in every case.—JONATHAN WEAVER, Berrysburg, Pa.

Last summer you sent me a pack of your powder which I gave to my poultry, and have not had one droopy turkey or chicken since.—MRS. WM. KNAPP, Orange, N. Y.

Send me a pack or two of your Cattle Powder. The pack I got from you last winter cured the chicken cholera. I gave some of it to a neighbor and it cured his chickens.—JOHN WILLIAMS, Spruce Vale, Ohio.

Address me for a pamphlet full of useful information for the farmer, horseman or dairyman.

For Tobacco Growers.

The following, from the Blossburg Register, concerning the destruction of tobacco plants by the cut worm, may be of interest to the growers of tobacco in this county: "In our younger days we had considerable experience in the growing of tobacco. We found that the common cut worm was the greatest enemy of the young plant, often making such severe attacks that we were obliged to reset several times, thereby making the crop very uneven. In order to circumvent this malicious and voracious enemy of the tobacco plant, we adopted the following plan, which was a complete success: About three weeks before we wished to set the tobacco plant we plowed the tobacco field and before harrowing it sowed about three bushels of buckwheat to the acre, and then immediately marked out the rows and made the "spats" or hills for setting. By the time we wished to set the tobacco plant, the buckwheat had grown to be about the same size of the tobacco plant, and was found in the same hill, "spat," or place where the tobacco plant was to be set. This was no annoyance. We set our tobacco plants and awaited the result. We found that the cut worm was just as fond of young and fresh buckwheat stalks as it was of tobacco, and there being three hundred stalks of buckwheat to one of tobacco the chances for the protection of the tobacco plant were in that proportion. In about two weeks the buckwheat was removed from between the rows, and in a week more from around the hill, and the danger was over: the cut worm had outlived his virulence and was ready to die by the heat of the sun. The field of tobacco was even, it ripened at the same time and could be harvested and taken eare of at the same period, and brought a better price in the market on that account."

Farm Notes.

A good carding of animals at this season stimulates the skin and thus assists the changing of their coats.

A horse will not bite a crib made of hemlock lumber, nor will rats, mice or other vermin gnaw through it.

In Egypt the sugar fields have been greatly injured by frost. Another inducement to our farmers to plant sugar beets, sorghum and corn, to be made into sugar.

R. Nadeau, of California, has planted 700 acres in sugar beets and the prospects are good for an immense yield. It is thought he will make a clear gain of $25,000 by the operation.

Mr. Thomas Ernest Gennert, of California, will have his sugar factory in full operation by the 1st of July. The work is progressing satisfactorily, and Los Angelos will soon be using sugar and syrup made at home.

Mrs. Albe Chase, of Weathersfield, Vt., has made from a grade Jersey cow, in sixty days time, 133 pounds of butter. The feed consisted of one quart of corn meal and one quart of cob meal per day, with all the good English hay she would eat.

"Philadelphia chickens" so-called in the Boston market, though mostly raised in New Jersey, sell at from 3 to 4 cents per pound higher than ordinary chickens, owing to the fact that they are more juicy and tender than the northern or western fowls.

At a meeting of the Western New York Farmers' Club inquiry was was made as to feeding beans to stock. The replies showed that they were regarded as especially adapted to sheep, being rich in nitrogen, which enter largely into the composition of wool.

Michael S. Wittle, of Rapho twp. Lancaster county, has sown a patch of about 1,000 square feet in tobacco seed; 262 feet of it is up and covered with nice young plants. The first seed was sown on the 26th of March and the last on the 15th of April.

The tiller of the soil is brought nearer to nature and to God than the dwellers in the cities. Nature is the farmer's silent partner, and exercises a controlling influence in the business; if he goes wrong she checks him; if right, she crowns his efforts with liberal success.

The Connecticut Farmer says that Mr. E. Bailey, of Little Compton, R. I., has kept from 1,000 to 1,200 hens during the past five years, and realized from each an annual profit of $2.15. Large flocks are not uncommon in that vicinity, the poultry interest being largely developed.

Few realize the necessity of manuring orchards. When once planted the trees are to remain on the same soil thirty or forty years, at least. They in a few years exhaust the food in the soil that they are most fond of, and then they will cease to be productive and thrifty unless properly fed.

The people of Pittsburg cannot give up the idea that the State fair should be held there. An association has been formed in that city to purchase grounds and erect buildings thereon, with a view to having the State fair held there. The capital stock will be limited to $100,000, with shares at $1,000 each.

Southern exchanges claim that the climate of California, Northern Georgia and Alabama is suited to the cultivation of the cinchona tree, from which quinine is made, and it is proposed to introduce the cultivation of these trees and thereby save the expense incurred in sending to South America for Peruvian bark.

SUMMARY OF THE NEWS.

PROVIDENCE, May 11.—In Coventry, on Saturday, George Watson, a farmer, moved some of his property to a house some distance away, and for security determined to sleep at the latter place. Not returning on Sunday his family sought him and found only a chimney of the house standing, the remainder having been burned. Watson's half burned body was found in the cellar. This mysterious affair will be investigated.

CHICAGO, May 11.—A fearful cyclone swept across the eastern part of McClean county Sunday night, damaging property valued at least at $100,000. In Arrowsmith township twelve dwellings were utterly destroyed. A 160 tree orchard was utterly eradicated. In Empire twp. the damage is nearly as widespread. Many persons were injured. The home of Edward Reese was destroyed, and Mr. Reese and his wife were lifted in their bed and carried a quarter of a mile and set down in a wheat field. A child of Mr. Kriez had its skull fractured and will die. The track of the cyclone was three-fourths of a mile wide. The town of Guthrie, which is a station on the Springfield division of the Illinois Central railroad, and which contains only half a dozen houses, was struck by lightning and everything destroyed by fire. There was a furious wind, and the lightning was brilliant and continuous throughout the entire central part of the State. A great many farms and towns were flooded for a time.

SCRANTON, May 12.—Robert McMillan, cashier of the suspended Scranton trust company and savings bank, has disappeared. His accounts are $6,000 short.

AUSTIN, Nev., May 12.—The Republican State convention met in this city to-day and adopted resolutions instructing the Nevada delegates to the Chicago convention to vote as a unit for Blaine.

PARIS, May 12.—The town of Baumholder, in the district of St. Wendel, Rhenish Prussia, has been almost destroyed by fire. Over a thousand persons have been rendered destitute.

LONDON, May 12.—The British consul at Bourgas, in eastern Roumelia telegraphs to Sir Ashton Layard that a band of soldiers from Bulgaria having entered the district of Aidar surrounded and pillaged nine Turkish villages, killing several men and outraging some women. Twenty-one hundred and sixty-six Musselmans escaped and are now encamped at Achielo.

BALTIMORE, May 12.—A terrific explosion occurred on the shore of the Patapsco River, near Fort McHenry, yesterday afternoon, resulting in the instant killing of six men and the wounding of two others. Just before 5 o'clock, when the People's Line of cars were carrying numbers of visitors to the fort, a startling report was heard that shook the entire southern portion of the city, and the same instant the cars were pierced and shattered by a volley of grape shot coming directly from the fort. A crowd hastily gathered and, running toward the shore, found a frightful spectacle near the river. The charred and riddled remains of three men were seen lying on the ground at least 200 yards from the scene of explosion. Another body, that of a boy, was found on the water's edge, and after a search the remains of two other victims were seen floating in the river, 150 feet from the bank. Two more men, who were still alive, were found lying behind a pile o boxes, their bodies torn and peppered with buckshot.

It was not until the injured ones had been cared for, and the dead removed, that the cause of the explosion was ascertained. It was then learned that David R. Shannon & Co., junk dealers, had purchased a quantity of condemned sharpnell and mortar shells at the fort, and took a part of them outside to break up. Francis G. Shannon, a brother of David R.; Herman Bush, John Farble, and Henry Hamlin were engaged in the work, and Robert Steinman, a boy named John Burke, an unknown boy, and unknown German were present looking on. An anvil was used for the breaking, and one of the men held the shells on it with his hands, while another struck them with a heavy sledge hammer. Before the shells were subjected to the blows from the hammer water was poured upon them. After one or two shells had been broken a policeman appeared and warned them of the danger. Soon afterward a shell was struck and it exploded. The boy John Burke, Herman Bush, John Farble, Robert Steinman, the unknown German, and the other boy were instantly killed, and Francis Shannon and Henry Hamlin were severely wounded. The bodies of all the killed were badly mutilated, and that of the German were literally blown to pieces. Portions of his body were found in every direction, the largest part being an arm. The report of the explosion was heard for a distance of five miles.

PITTSBURGH, May 18.—James Kearney, aged 28 years, single, and employed at the Eliza furnace, sent a bullet into his heart at his boarding house, kept near the furnace by Mrs. Brown. He walked down stairs and fell dead when he reached the bottom. The revolver was of the smallest make. Kearney had been despondent for some time. He came here about a year ago from New York city. He had no relatives in this vicinity. A verdict of suicide was rendered by the coroner's jury.

LONDON, May 13.—A large proportion of factory operatives of Blackburn left their employment yesterday as they finished the making up. It is, however, doubtful whether in the end the strike will become general, as public opinion is altogether opposed to it. At a number of mills the operatives have decided to work at the old rate of wages, but some employers have refused to allow them to do this, while two or three masters have offered to grant an increase of 5 per cent. in the wages of operatives. The Blackburn strike has produced much consternation in Oldham, Blackburn being its principal customer.

After six months of prosperity, during which the limited companies have been paying from 15 to 20 per cent., there is a prospect of as severe times as in 1879. Stocks are already accumulating, and it has been determined to counteract the evil effects of the Blackburn strike by stopping operations for a week.

WASHINGTON, May 13.—The cremation of the body of Augustus Poetz took place last night. The body arrived on the seven o'clock train from Pittsburgh, and was met at the depot by S. M. Wiley, undertaker, with a hearse, who took charge of it. The hearse was drawn by two spirited horses, and came trotting down Main street at a lively rate, leaving a cloud of dust behind, followed at a distance by two buggies, containing a reporter or two and the trustees of the crematory. All appeared in a hurry to dispose of the dead to the fiery furnace. Enoch Dye, the fireman, had made all preparations. The fires were lighted this morning, and when the body arrived the furnace was a white heat. The body was encased in a plain coffin, and was reduced to a skeleton, having been placed in a vault with a view of having it cremated in accordance with the wishes of the deceased. The body was wrapped in a sheet saturated with alum water and placed in the furnace at 8:30 o'clock last evening, and in a few minutes was a red coal. The ashes will be taken to Europe by the daughter of the deceased. There were no funeral ceremonies, and not a tear was shed.

LEBANON, Pa., May 13.—Very few persons were admitted to the jail yard this morning to witness the execution of Brandt, Hummel and Wise. The entire morning was taken up with religious services. Rev. George Trabert, assisted by Rev. J. F. J. Shantz, of Myerstown, attended upon Brandt and Hummel, while the Revs. Israel Hay and Ezekiel Light gave spiritual consolation to Wise. At 11:30 a. m. Wise gave notice to the deputy sheriff that he was in readiness to proceed to the gallows. The solemnity of the scene was intense. Wise left his cell first, preceded by the Revs. Hay and Light, and ascended the scaffold with a firm step and a smile upon his countenance. He was allowed to make the following statement: "What I have to say is that all were guilty, as I testified in court and confessed all about it, and how Hummel got in; that is all I have to say." Rev. Mr. Hay accompanied Wise to the scaffold, and prayed and sang that familiar hymn in German, "There is a fountain filled with blood." At the conclusion of this hymn Brandt and Hummel were brought out, accompanied by the deputy sheriff and clergymen. The men were all dressed in dark suits, with a boutonnier made of smilax and lilies of the valley, which had been presented early in the morning by their friends. The men were swung off on the same gallows upon which Drews and Stichter met their death.

A very impressive scene took place upon the gallows just previous to the execution. The deputy sheriff, the clergymen, Sheriff Crall and assistants went up on the scaffold and shook hands with the culprits. Each one of them thanked Sheriff Crall for his kindness and attention during their incarceration of two years, and expressed a desire to meet him in the world to come. At Wise's special request he was allowed to visit the cells of all the other prisoners in the jail, and while bidding them goodbye impressed upon them the necessity of leading honest and virtuous lives. At 11:15 a. m. Sheriff Crall stepped upon the platform and adjusted the ropes around the necks of the three men. At the same time his deputies bound them hand and foot, placing on their heads white muslin caps. Both Brandt and Hummel were asked if they had anything to say, and they replied in the negative. All three men knelt upon the platform of the trap and engaged in prayer, after which Rev. Mr. Shantz read appropriate passages from the scriptures. All persons having withdrawn from the scaffold, Sheriff Crall sprang the trap at exactly 11 o'clock and eighteen minutes. All three of the men swung into the air without a contortion or movement of a muscle. A slight tremor was observed in Hummel's knees, but beyond that nothing indicated but what death was sudden and easy. At 11:30 Dr. Lineweaver examined the bodies and declared them dead.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—In the House Mr. Gibson reported a resolution fixing final adjournment on May 31, and will call it up when the pending appropriation bill is passed.

Mr. Mills gave notice that he would move to recommit with instructions to report it back after bills relative to tariff were passed.

The President sent the name of N. G. Ordway to the Senate to-day to be governor of Dakota.

At 12:30 the House went into committee of the whole on the legislative appropriation bill. At 2:30 the consideration of the bill was concluded, and it was reported to the House.

WASHINGTON, May 14.—It comes from high authority here that Tilden is in the Presidential race to stay, and that all the talk of his withdrawing or appointing a residuary legatee is the merest moonshine.

Hon. Edward McPherson says the unit rule has not been in force in Republican national conventions since 1868, when Don Cameron broke it by refusing to vote for ex-Gov. Curtin for vice president. Mr. McPherson says that since the committee on rules and on credentials are appointed by the States, and Blaine having the majority by States, his friends will control these committees, which will give Blaine a great advantage in the preliminary organization.

NORWAY, Mich., May 14.—No. 2 shaft of the Lumbermens' mining company's Ludington ore mine caved in on Wednesday night, burying alive sixteen miners. John Tio, Isaac Winn and Oliver Gardner were taken out dead. The others were taken out alive. The work of rescuing the miners was done by men employed in other parts of the mine and was necessarily slow, the rock all having to be hoisted to the surface. The men were confined from midnight until nine o'clock yesterday morning.

MILFORD, Pike Co., May 14.—Extensive forest fires continue to rage about here. Over 3,000,000 feet of lumber, besides a large amount of valuable timber, has been destroyed. Several houses and barns have been burned. Six thousand acres of land are on fire this morning. The damage cannot be estimated. Considerable game has been killed by the flames. The fires are nearly all the result of incendiaries. A slight rain is now falling.

LANCASTER, May 14.—The jury in the case of Julia Hoover, indicted by the grand jury some time ago of murdering her half-sister, an infant, rendered a verdict this morning, after being out but a very short time, of not guilty. This case had excited a great deal of attention, and when the verdict of the jury was returned, the audience gave vent to their feelings by loud applause, which was immediately stopped by the court.

BUFFALO, May 14.—Carl Mauke was executed here this morning for the murder of John Athoff at Elma, on April 3, 1879. He was perfectly indifferent to his fate, and while religious services were being held he thus laughingly commented on the minister's prayer—"You don't know the holy spirit, you steer!" He showed no signs of fear on the scaffold and died without a struggle.

The World Not to be Converted.

The idea of the conversion of the world is a great mistake. It is not sustained by Scripture. It is contrary to Scripture in a multitude of passages. Christ never teaches it, nor the apostles.

1. The world cannot all be converted while the Papacy exists; but this is to exist till Christ comes.

The Scriptures give us the character of the Papacy. It is the enemy of God, and of the people of God. Scripture foretells the enormities of the Papacy. It "shall wear out the saints of the Most High." "The same horn (papacy) made war with the saints, and prevailed against them." "Shall destroy the mighty and the holy people." "Drunken with the blood of the saints." "Full of names of blasphemy."

These are some out of many of the expressions of Scripture, showing the character and the works of the Papacy; and while this huge system of wickedness continues the world cannot be wholly converted.

But the Papacy is to continue on the earth until Christ comes on the resurrection morn. Scripture teaches that, while its power will be diminished by the "spirit of His mouth," it is to be destroyed only by "the brightness of His coming."

2. The world is to be full of enemies when Christ comes.

The third woe shows this, for it is the fearful war of the wicked on earth after Christ comes.

Christ comes at the close of the sixth seal and the beginning of the seventh; at the close of the sixth trumpet and the beginning of the seventh; at the close of the sixth vial and the beginning of the seventh.

But the third woe takes place on earth after the sounding of the seventh trumpet, and is identical with the "battle of the great day of God Almighty," the battle or war of Armagaddon, which is to extend throughout the whole earth.

This war, or woe, is set forth in many places in Scriptures, as in Jer. 25:30 to 33. Verse 30 pictures the coming of Christ, and the following verses the war which follows:

Verse 33 says: "And the slain of the Lord shall be at that day from one end of the earth even unto the other end of the earth."

This is subsequent to the coming of Christ.

Verses 15 to 29 contain the prophecy of the same war.

Isa. 66:15. "For behold the Lord will come with fire (the coming of Christ) and with his chariots like a whirlwind, to render his anger with fury, and his rebuke with flames of fire. For by fire and by his sword will the Lord plead with all flesh (the third woe) and the slain of the Lord shall be many."

Isa. 26:21. "For behold the Lord cometh out of his place (the coming of Christ) to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity," (the third woe.)

If the world is to be all converted to Christ before He comes, how is it that He finds the world so full of the wicked at his coming?

3. The Parable of Tares shows that the world is not to be all converted.

They grow with the wheat till the harvest. "The harvest is the end of the world," when Christ comes. The tares are the wicked.

4. The consternation and mourning of multitudes on the earth, when Christ comes, show that the world is not all converted.—Matt. 24:30: "And then shall all the tribes on earth mourn."

Why mourn if all were his friends and his people?

Rev. 6:15, 16, where, when Christ comes, kings and mighty men and rich men, and a host of others, call on the mountains and rocks to fall on them, and hide them from the face of God and of Christ. Why so if all are converted and are the friends and people of God?

These are a few out of the many evidences in Scripture that the world is not to be converted to God.

All praise and honor to those missionaries who have gone out, and to those who send them and support them, that they may do what they can to "preach the gospel to every creature."

But when men teach and pray and expect that all the world will be converted before Christ comes, this is what is not sustained by Scripture, but is contrary to Scripture in a multitude of places.

Hence, the millenium is never to take place through the conversion of all the world to God. ERWIN.

BOSTON, Massachusetts, May 1.

A Remarkable Scene.

A few miles off the road down the open and well cultivated valley of the Narbada, in Central India, is a mighty river pent up into a third of its width, and for more than two miles boiling along between two sheer walls of pure white marble, a hundred feet in height, with here and there a seam of dark green or black volcanic rock, which enhances the purity of the marble like a setting of jet. What must be the charm, in a dusty Oriental land, of the coolness and quiet of those pure cold rocks, and of the deep blue, pelucid water. "The eye," says the traveler, "never wearies of the infinite variety of effect produced by the broken and reflected sunlight, and now glancing from a pinnacle of snow-white marble reared against the deep blue of the sky; as from a point of silver, touching here and there with bright lights the prominences of the middle heights, and again losing itself in the soft bluish grays of their recesses. Still lower down the bases of the cliffs are almost lost in the hazy shadows, so that it is hard to tell at what point the rocks have melted into the water, from whose depths the same lights, in inverse order, are reflected as clear as above, but broken into a thousand quivering fragments in the swirl of the pool." This beautiful spot is infested with bees, which, if disturbed, many travelers have found very dangerous; and, indeed, on one occasion they stung an intruder to death. The Marble rocks, like almost every object of great natural beauty, have been sanctified by the Brahmins, and many of the commonest legends transported hither. Across the chasm the monkey legions of Hanuman leaped on their way to Ceylon; the Celestial elephant of India left his mighty footprints here in the white rock. Temples to the Siva crown the right bank of the cliff, and by the river's edge is a favorite ghat for the launching of the bodies of devout Hindus into the waters of Mother Narbada, which are consequently polluted with ghoul like turtles, monstrous fishes, and repulsive crocodiles, that fatten on the ghastly provender thus provided for them.

Stewart's Stolen Body.

The Philadelphia Star publishes a deathbed confession of one Jacob Meyers, purporting to have been made at New Orleans in January last to A. E. Fenwick, a medical student, in which Meyers relates a story of having been for years in A. T. Stewart's employ at New York at starvation wages; speaks of hard-hearted treatment generally at the hands of his millionaire employer; the sickening and death of his half-fed wife and all his children except his son David; his leaving Stewart's employ with the hope and determination at some time in the indefinite future, of being revenged upon Stewart; how he watched for years for Stewart's name in the list of killed by every railroad accident and explosion or other disaster; how he gloated over the fact of Stewart's death at last; how, living in proximity to the grave of Stewart, the idea of stealing the body, with the aid of his son, and desecrating it came upon him like a flash; how they obtained the body, but committed the mistake of not procuring an India rubber bag in which to remove the putrid mass; how they placed it in a cart and removed it to their residence, where the famished dogs rushed upon it and by morning had devoured it; the illness of David on the following day, his slow and only partial recovery; their removal to New Orleans, where David died from the effects of the poison three months before this confession was made; and, last, the assurance that the remains will never be found, as they were taken not as a speculation but for revenge.

The Star attempted to verify the story by inquiry of Judge Hilton, at New York, but the only fact learned in corroboration of the confession was that Mr. John Brown, an old usher or floor walker, who had been in Stewart's store since 1848, recollected that a Jacob Meyers was once in the employ of Stewart, but there were very few other circumstances in connection with Meyers recalled by Mr. Brown which served to verify the story, and Judge Hilton was in nowise disposed to give credence to it—in fact, rather scouted it.

A Bellefonte party have contracted to remove Peter Wright and sons of Philadelphia's barrel stave factory from Fayette county to Charlestown, W. Va.

Now we'd like to know what Peter and his sons have been up to that they should be removed to Virginia. Wouldn't it be better to Peter the factory and Charlestown the sons with a Fayette stave? Or how would it do to barrel Peter in Virginia and stave the sons with the factory? If that wouldn't work they might Fayette the sons with Charlestown, plug up Virginia with the contract, and stave Peter into the barrel. Surely this matter ought to be adjusted somehow.

A genius without common sense has little advantage over the regular fool.

Rivaling Congress.

The committee on judiciary, to whom was referred the query: "Where shall we go this summer?" reported: "Dis committee didn't hesitate to tackle de subject face to face. We didn't sot aroun' de co'ner groceries nor hold our meetins in free lunch saloons, but we got toged-er at our own houses an' we roasted an' baked the query down fine. De conclushun arroved at am dat some of us will go to jail, some to Mackinaw, some to de grave, some to de sea-shor', some to Canady, some to Toledo, and some to the kentry to git our liver regulated. We shan't all go to no one place, kase de kivered kyars an' de hotels couldn't hold us." The report was no sooner fini hed that Troubadour Smith, chairman of the committee on banks and banking, arose and said:

"Misser President, what means dat reference to co'ner groceries an' free lunch saloons? If anybody means to hit anybody why doan' dey speak right out?" Burdock Jones, through whom the report had been made, drew himself up, stretched out his arm and slowly replied:

"Let the jaded gall wince!"

"Order, order," cried several voices.

"Misser Jones, my second will wait on you!" shouted Smith.

"Let him come, sah—the sooner de better."

Half the members were on their feet when the gavel came down hard and the president said:

"Brudders Smith and Jones am fined ten dollars each, an' de nex man who takes de flo' widout bein' recogized by the cha'r will feel something drap on his head. Sich purceedings as we have had heah war' neber seen befo' outside of Congress!"

During the silence that ollowed Samuel Shin made an effort to cross his legs and knocked the water-pail bottom side up, filling the brogans of Giveadam Jones and Whitelaw Skinner full of ice-cold liquid. The Glee Club sang:

Let dogs delight to bark an' fight,
An' let de hornet sting;
Let cats go crawlin' roun' at night
In summer, fallan' spring.

Let tigers snarl an' lions roar,
An' let de serpent hiss;
But let de brudders of dis club
Togeder dwell in bliss.

Talking Across the Country.

It is really pleasant to note as you travel across the republic, from Maine to Colorado, how the topic of conversation changes at State lines, just as the expression of faces and styles of clothes gradually undergo an alteration. Down in Maine, when I got away from the coasts, I heard lumber and "the woods" all the time. The men were "in the woods" or the man who talked to you had just come out of the woods. Then you go to the coast and everybody fished, and you dreamed of droys and hake and haddock and things that you never heard of before. When you go to Bath you begin to pick up all manner of ship carpenters' slang. Then you come nearer New York and commercial travelers filled the air with mercantile argot, and as you held your way westward you get into the oil regions of Pennsylvania and for a while Bradford and Oil City, Titusville and Franklin talked bull wheel and pipe lines and dry holes and heavy oils and refinery, and tank and drill and rigs, and walkingbeam and derrick and pump, until you could taste oil every time you talked. Then you moved along through Johnstown and Pittsburgh and hear about blasts, and open hearth furnaces, and crucibles and Bessemer process and rails, wire and ingot, until you left them behind and Indiana was talking to you about staves and heads and hoop poles and veneers and hard woods and quinine and bent wood and wagon timber, and by and by Illinois got your ear and said "corn," and you got across the Mississippi and out into Nebraska and heard a man say to a neighbor, "Ben, where is that timber claim of Johnson's?" and you heard Ben reply briefly, "12, 15, 9," and you knew that you were in a country of land, and that eighties and quarter sections, and timber claims and homesteads and preemptions were to constiute your conversational pabulum for the next two or three weeks, until you reached Colorado and began to hear assay, and dips and lead, angles, spurs and sinuosities, and claims, and carbonates, and that is as far west as I have been, and I don't know what they talk about beyond there.—Burlington Hawkeye.

Fooled by a Joke.

A faithful night watchman in a Sacramento warehouse was recently made the victim of a practical joke. Six alarm clocks were locked up in the drawers of six desks along the wall. They were so arranged that the first should begin the racket about 1 o'clock in the morning, and the others to chime in at an interval of a half hour each. At the appointed time, as the watchman was resting his feet upon the stove, the heretofore noiseless little instrument in one of the drawers fairly turned itself loose with a noise resembling the ringing of half a dozen doorbells mingled with the roar of a steam engine. The startled watchman sprang to his feet and rushed to the windows, but, gazing out, could see nothing, and again taking his seat, was beginning to imagine he had been mistaken, when clock No. 2 went through a like performance. This time the location was suspected, but the cause not understood. When No. 3 began there was new cause for wonder, as the noise had changed from one desk to another. The matter now became too perplexing for the rest, and No. 4 and No. 5 were listened to with equal astonishment. When the last one had ended the night's entertainment the joke was seen.

The Russian Floating Prison.

On April 14 the steamer Nijny-Novgorod, loaded with criminals and provisons, left Odessa for the island of Saghalien. On the steamer there are four hundred male prisoners, eight female prisoners, twenty-seven women voluntarily accompanying their condemned husbands, two men accompanying their condemned wives, and sixty-four children. The Archbishop Platon performed the solemn thanksgiving service, and prayer was offered for the long life of the reigning family and of those sailing away. The Archbishop addressed the women, blessed them, and besprinkled them with holy water; then the male prisoners were brought up, and in their turn received the word of encouragement and hope. Many of the prisoners wept.

The male prisoners are placed in four departments, one hundred men in each, and the women in two rooms. There are two hospitals for males and females, a drug store and a chapel. There are two surgeons, one priest, four officers of the interior, and a gentleman and his wife to look after the conduct of the prisoners. It is said that the prisoners will receive the same food as the crew, to wit, tea at breakfast, soup and meat at dinner, gruel at supper. All the prisoners are in chains, but when well out at sea they will be unchained—at least those of them who behave well. The children and the persons voluntarily going to the island will enjoy full freedom. The cargo of the steamer amounts to 72,000 poods, or 2,880,000 pounds—50,000 poods of grain, and the rest old iron rails to be used for the construction of the horse railroad on Saghelien, from the port to the principal prison in the central part of the island. Fifty-four soldiers perform guard duty.

Last year the Nijny-Novgorod performed the same journey in 52 days. Though it was a great success as regards the health of the prisoners, still it is found necessary now to take one hundred fewer than last year. The steamer is painted white and displays the Russian Imperial war flag.

A Distressing Spectacle.

The saddest of all the sad features in the Smith-Miller murder trial was witnessed yesterday when the little 10-year old daughter of Mrs. Miller was called to testify as to the part taken by her mother and George Smith in the killing of her father. It was with great reluctance that the district attorney put the little girl on the stand, but there did not appear to be any way of avoiding it. The evidence given by the girl was of a thrilling character, and very damaging to her mother. There was something peculiarly pathetic in her story about her mother taking a piece of rope from the clothes line and informing her daughter that it was to be given to George Smith to "hang papa with." The poor little child got through with her painful story pretty well until near the close, when her youthful voice began to quiver and her eyes to fill with tears. The kindest consideration was shown her by the court and counsel on both sides. There was general sympathy for her in her trying situation, and one or two of the jurors were seen to shed tears. It is very rarely that a more distressing spectacle is witnessed in our courts.

Burying a Chinaman.

The interment of a Chinaman, accompanied by the rites of the Chinese kingdom, is such a rare thing, that the burial of Ah Sing at Belleville, a suburb of Newark, N. J., has attracted considerable attention. There are a number of Chinese at Belleville, and Ah Sing seems to have been a prominent member of their community. A deputation of the celestials waited on the undertaker and informed him that they desired a "nicee hearsee, with chickee felle on top side uppee hearsee, alle same Melican man."

A plate containing meat, small birds and a dressed chicken in a sitting posture, was deposited at the foot of the grave. Near this were chopsticks, a bowl of rice and a bowl of tea to sustain the departed during journey to the spirit land. The mound was partly surrounded by lighted tapers and burning incense sticks, while the papers wrapped around the candles were bured. During the consuming of these one of the group advanced and with many protestations poured tea on the ground for a bowl. All the Chinese bowed and prostrated themselves. Upon the return to the laundry all the goods and effects were burned in the presence of friends of the deceased.

Choked to Death.

A curious and shocking accident occurred in Readington, a small town about eight miles from Flemington, N. J., on Friday last, resulting in the death of the daughter of Peter Hyler, an influential farmer. The little girl, 4 years old, accompanied her mother to feed the chickens, and after the mother's return, remained near the wagon house to play. When half an hour had elapsed she started in search of the little one. She was horrified to find the dead body of her child suspended by the neck from the door of a corn crib, which is built in the wagon house. The door is composed of boards, which slide up and down in a groove. Some of the upper boards had previously been shoved up, where they had caught fast, thus leaving an opening some four feet from the ground. It is supposed that in playing the little child put her head through this opening and swung her feet playfully against the boards forming the lower part of the door. The jar must have caused the upper boards to fall, and catching the child's head they imprisoned her and choked her to death.

A Murderer Killed by a Mule.

An inquest was held by Deputy Coroner Beam on Friday in the case of James Baisley, aged 36 years, of No. 1003 East Dauphin street, Philadelphia, who died in St. Mary's hospital on Monday last from injuries received by being knocked down by heavy iron coal box at the Frankfort Gas Works on the previous day. It was in evidence that a mule attached to the coal box became unmanageable, and threw the deceased down causing him to be caught between the box and gas retort. The jury gave a verdict of accidental death. Baizley is the same man who a year ago was convicted of killing an old man named Patrick Boyd, and was imprisoned for eight months.

Didn't Appreciate It.

The maddest man in town Thursday lives on Spring street. While in an uptown grocery store some one slipped an egg into his coat pocket, and then drew him out on the Third Term question. He became considerably excited over the discussion, and in swinging his arms about to illustrate his argument, his knuckles came in contact with the egg. Of course it was demolished, and as there happened to be a hole in his pocket, the contents ran out and trickled down his pant leg, leaving a streak of gorgeousness far outrivaling an Italian sunset in August. The subject under debate was immediately dropped, and if the man who perpetrated the joke could have been discovered he would have dropped also, for the imposed upon citizen brought his fist down on the head of a barrel with a thud, and said he had just two dollars in his pocket to present to the man who would point out the "whelp who done it." But no one spoke or even winked, and he finally went home and put his trousers to soak in a barrel of rain water.

Manhood: How Lost How Restored

☞ Just published, a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay, on the radical cure (without medicine) of Spermatorrhœa, or Seminal Weakness, Involuntary Seminal Losses, Impotency, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc.; also, Consumption, Epilepsy and Fits, induced by self-indulgence or sexual extravagance, &c.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from a thirty years' successful practice, that the alarming consequences of self-abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

Memorial Day.

The following general order, concerning Decoration day, has been issued from the headquarters of the Grand Army of the Republic in Philadelphia:

HEADQUARTERS, DEP'T OF PENN'A,
GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC,
No. 1037, Chestnut St.
PHILAD'A., May 8, 1880.

COMRADES: On the 29th of May we will be called once more to observe our annual sacrament of sorrow, and to celebrate another Memorial day. Again we must reverently droop the old flag over the grave of those who died, so that it might still wave the unsullied emblem of a Nation, united and free; and to scatter upon the mounds, which mark their bivouac, the fairest flowers of spring.

Decoration Day, always the tenderest, has now become one of the most significant of our holidays, in the fact that it is peculiarly a "Memorial" of the private soldier. The deeds of our great captains are carved in marble, perpetuated in bronze, and engraved on the tablets of history—but the flowers of Memorial Day fall upon the graves and commemorate the unrecorded bravery of the ranks—a beautiful and almost universal homage to the service and sacrifice of the Union volunteer soldier.

If others forget the purchase price of the Union, we must recall it in our devotions; if others forget the costly sacrifice of life, we must recall it in our renewed allegiance to the sentiment for which our comrades died, and while in music and eloquence you recall the heroism which won our victory, and saved the nation's precious life, do not fail to appeal to that better sentiment which will reconcile political differences between citizens of all parties, in all sections. For the Union one and inseparable they died, over whose green graves we spread the gems of wood and wild; cypress and laurel.

Citizens of Pennsylvania: The Grand Army appeals to you, that where organizations of veterans exist, there may be found willing hands to pay this loving tribute to the Nation's dead. To the reverend clergy, to teachers, to schools, to orders and societies, we appeal that no spot, however lonely, no grave however neglected, no place where sleeps a soldier of the Union shall the sunset of Decoration day find unadorned with an offering of remembrance. The land is already with the graves of the "unknown;" let not Pennsylvania's soil hold a single one that may be marked "forgotten." Rather let the cemeteries of the Keystone State be strewn with flowers till every veteran's tomb shall wear a mantle of beauty fit for such a shrine.

The Department Commander recommends that each post provide for an appropriate sermon, on Sunday, the 30th, attending the appointed service in uniform and in a body. By command of

CHILL W. HAZZARD, Dept. Com.
J. M. VANDERSLICE, Ast. Adj. Gen.

Gregg Post G. A. R., of this place, is making all necessary arrangements for the proper observance of Decoration Day on the 29th. At a late meeting of the Post the following gentlemen were appointed to serve on the various committees:

Music—D. M. Glenn, S. H. Williams and R. C. Cheesman.

Flags and Flowers—E. A. Smith, W. H. Waggoner, R. C. Irvin, Wm. Jones, Jno. T. Tate.

Finance—William Jones.

The committee on flowers solicits contributions in bouquets, wreaths, etc., from the ladies and all others who feel an interest in the matter, and requests that all such articles be left in the anteroom at the Post headquarters on the morning of Decoration Day, where they will be taken charge of.

—The Howe sewing machine to the front! A telegram received from the International Exhibiton, Sydney, Australia, dated April 15, 1880, says "Howe highest award." A. C. Moore is the only authorized general agent for Centre county. C. H. Moore is the agent for Bellefonte, and T. B. Johnston for Milesburg. Agents are making a specialty of the new "B" Howe machine, the latest improved sewing machine for family and light manufacturing purposes. The proprietors have spared neither time nor expense in perfecting this machine, and claim that for durability, simplicity, speed, lightness of running and beauty of finish the new "B" has no equal.

—Michael Phalen, a faithful employe of the Pennsylvania railroad shops; in Altoona, having reached the patriarchol age of seventy-nine years, has concluded to give up work. He sold his tools, and the faithful old man felt badly because he was parting with the companions of his long life of honorable toil.

—Candidates will soon be around shaking hands and inquiring if all the folks are well.

Decoration Day in Ferguson Township.

Arrangements are being made to visit all the cemeteries in the township on Decoration day, for the purpose of decorating the graves of the soldiers who gave their lives to their country. The delegation will be accompanied by a cornet band, glee club and choir. The marshal most respectfully requests all soldiers and citizens to meet at the Town Hall on Saturday, the 29th, at 7 o'clock a. m. when the line will be formed and a programme announced for the day.

The delegation will visit the cemetery at Pine Hall at 9 o'clock a. m., Gatesburg at 12 m., Meek's at 3 p. m., and Pine Grove at 6 p. m. A cordial invitation is extended to all citizens and Sunday schools to meet at the various cemeteries to participate in the ceremonies. Prominent speakers have been invited and will be in attendance. Relatives or friends wishing to furnish wreaths and flowers for special graves will please present them at the Hall by 7 o'clock a. m., so that they will be distributed on the proper graves.

WM. H. FRY, Marshal.

A Worthy Act.

Mr. Joseph Stiles, who recently came from the vicinity of Milton to act as porter at the Bush House at this place, is possessed of a very kindly disposition, and by his efforts to aid the unfortunate people of Milton, has set a worthy example. Kindly remembering his old friends, he drew up a subscription paper on Saturday, and after heading it with a liberal contribution himself, passed it around among his brother employees of the house, and succeeded in raising the neat little sum of $13.25, which, together with fifteen bushel of potatoes, have been forwarded to the Milton sufferers. These little deeds of kindness are like the Widow's Mite, and will bring blessings upon our colored friend, who is much esteemed by our citizens.

Obituary.

We learn of the death of Rev. Thomas Barnhart, late of Red Oak, Iowa, but a native of Centre county, and formerly a member of the Central Pa. conference of the M. E. church. Rev. Barnhart has many relatives in this county, among whom is our townsman, D. Z. Kline. We have not learned the date of his death.

—Our collector A. B. Steele is now at work at Pleasant Gap, Centre Hall, Centre Hill and Potters Mills. We hope our friends will try and be ready to receive him with the cash. Next week he will visit Houserville, Lemont, Linden Hall, State College and Boalsburg. Mr. Steele is visiting every place in Centre county, and so far in his travels has met with flattering success. He has high hopes that the rich section which he is now to visit will yield as good a harvest after closing up with the above named places he will then as soon as possible visit Penn Hall, Spring Mills, Millneim, Aaronsburg, Woodward, Madisonburg, Centre Mills, Rebersburg and Wolfs Store. There are hundreds of you at these places and gentlemen, try and pay us.

—A. G. Noll has rented the shoe shop lately occupied by L. Erhard, and would be glad to receive from the good people of Bellefonte and vicinity a living patronage. He feels prepared to say that he can give satisfaction to the most critical in manufacturing and repairing boots, shoes and gaiters. Charges moderate,—take your work to him—give him a trial. 12-20-1m.

—The State College Dramatic Club, the same organization that presented "Oliver Twist" so satisfactorily in this place a year or so ago, will play "Eugene Aram," as dramatized from Lord Lytton's well known story of that name, on Friday evening, May 28th. The club is composed of some able talent, and we doubt not the play will be strongly presented.

—The Curwensville Times man is down on the women for using fans in church. Says he can't hear the sermon, or anything else. One of these days he may get into a place where a fan would come mighty handy, and its value greatly enhanced in his estimation.

—A full line of the celebrated Ginwet Paris black gros grain silks, best quality, at $1.75, worth $2.50; second best quality $1.45, worth $2.00. Call immediately at the Bee Hive for this bargain.

—At Sechler & Co.'s grocery store can be found the largest and best assortment of groceries and everything in that line to be found in Centre county.

—Two entirely new buggies, one oped top and the other a leather top with gum centres, for sale by H. K. Hicks, at the lowest prices. 20tf —Hurrah for the fine hats at the Bee Hive.

Mann's Axe Factory.

A reporter of the Harrisburg Telegraph, who is writing up the industries of Mifflintown for that paper, writes as follows of the axe manufactory of William Mann, Jr., & Co., near Lewistown. Our fellow townsman, J. Fearon Mann, is a brother of Wm. Mann, Jr., the senior partner of the above named firm: "For half a century the manufacture of axes has been carried on in Mifflin and Centre counties by a family named Mann, whose reputation in the line of their business has been as wide and as solidly established as that of the Rodgers and Westling houses of England in their line of fine cutlery. Wm. Mann, Jr., & Co. now operate a large factory near Mann's Station, on what is known as the Milroy branch of the Pennsylvania railroad. This factory has been in operation for very many years, and has grown in capacity of machinery and numbers of employes until it is one of the most extensive in its line in the country. The works have been stopped for several days for repairs, and the introduction of new machinery. To-day (Thursday) the entire establishment will resume operations with a full force of two hundred men in its different departments.

"A Telegraph reporter who visited the establishment this week was informed that it turns out fifteen hundred axes per day, which are shipped to all parts of this country, with invoices that go to India and China. Nor is this a new trade. The axes made by the Mann family were those used by the pioneers who cleared the better part of the land in the west and north, now the great grain fields of the continent. The woodsmen of the forests of the north and northwest have preferred these axes to all others, and the Mann axe is as well known on the continent as any tool now used in the industries of the period.

"William Mann, Jr., & Co. conduct their business on the strictest rules of industrial and commercial discipline, and have around their factory a community dependent on its success for living as intelligent, orderly and comfortably located as any in the country. No set of employees are more contented, and no employers deal more liberally with their workmen than this firm. This makes it altogether a model establishment, one which has given Pennsylvania a wide reputation in the business of the country."

Combat Between Crows and a Snake.

A friend informs us that while riding in the country one day last week his attention was attracted by the peculiar actions of a pair of crows in a field a few rods from the road. After rising to an attitude of eight or ten feet the birds would turn suddenly and pounce upon some object on the ground, then rise in the air again and repeat the operation. Being at a loss to know what kind of a frolic the birds were engaged in, he left his team and went into the field to investigate the matter. When within a few yards of the scene he was not a little surprised on finding the crows engaged in a lively combat with a large black snake. They would swoop down upon his snakeship with open beak and endeavor to seize him, but at every attempt the snake would quickly coil himself and make a savage thrust at his would be captors, which made it difficult for them to get hold of him. Our informant was not long permitted to view the interesting spectacle, as the crows became frightened at his approach and flew off, after which he dispatched the snake with a club, which measured over four feet in length.

United in Death.

The Mount Joy Herald gives the following account of the burying of a husband and wife on the same day: "It is very rare for any community to be called on to follow to the grave, at one time, a man and wife, who both died a natural death. Mr. Jacob Stauffer, a prominent citizen of Franklin county, Pa., and pretty generally known in this vicinity, had been very sick with pneumonia, but last week he seemed to be improving, when his wife, who was still a very active woman, though about seventy years of age, was stricken down with appoplexy. On Saturday, about three days days after she became ill, she died, and Tuesday was appointed for the funeral. This shock was too much for the aged husband, and he began to sink fast, and early on the morning appointed for his wife's funeral, his spirit too departed to join her in that heavenly land. Her remains were not then buried, but both funerals were held on Thursday last. They were conscientious Christians, and greatly beloved by all who knew them."

—We call the attention of farmers and others interested in live stock and horses, to the advertisement of Breinig Pronefield & Co's. cattle powder, the oldest and most reliable in the market.

MILTON'S GREAT CALAMITY.

Bellefonte Responds to Her Appeal for Succor.

Bellefonte, always ready and willing to aid a sister town in distress, was quick to respond to Milton's appeal for help, and in a very short time after the dispatch was received at this place, Saturday morning, stating that five thousand people were homeless and in a needy condition, notices were printed and posted in all the conspicuous places in town calling upon our citizens to contribute articles of clothing, provisions, donations in money, or anything to alleviate the sufferings of her unfortunate people. A public meeting was held in the Court House at 1 o'clock p. m. to take action in the matter. Chief Burgess Dale was chosen president of the meeting and Geo. L. Potter, Esq., secretary. A. O. Furst, Esq., then addressed the meeting, stating the amount of Milton's losses, so far as could be ascertained, and appealing to all present to bring the matter home to their own hearts, and contribute as much as their circumstances would permit towards the relief fund. A committee was then appointed to canvass each ward and solicit contributions in clothing and provisions, to be sent to the Snow Shoe railroad freight office for transportation. The handsome sum of $350 was raised by subscription, and after giving some further instructions in regard to the collecting and disposal of goods the meeting adjourned.

The scene around the Snow Shoe office during the afternoon reminded one of war times, when mothers congregated about the depots with bundles and boxes of clothing to send to their husbands and sons in the army. Superintendent Rhoads, in his shirt sleeves and surrounded by his aids, was flying about as busy as a bee, packing the clothing and provisions into boxes and barrels, and getting them ready for shipment. Our citizens and merchants responded generously when called upon for aid by the committee, and wagons containing boxes of clothing, provisions, etc., and boys carrying bundles of the same, were going to and from the depot during the afternoon, and by evening a carload of goods had accumulated. Six barrels of flour, one or two barrels of bread and a barrel of hams were sent off by express in the morning train, and several boxes of clothing and provisions were dispatched in the evening, but for want of sufficient transportation facilities the bulk of the contributions from this place was not be forwarded until Monday.

In thus promptly acting in the matter, and sending relief to this afflicted community, so suddenly and terribly made homeless, Bellefonte has discharged a duty which she owes to her fellow mortals in distress, and we trust no one will think us influenced by any selfish motives if we say she has discharged it faithfully and well.

It is estimated that supplies to the amount of $1,000, including donations in money, will be sent from this place.

Eagleville Items.

Eagleville is a pretty little village, nestling among the hills in the eastern part of Centre county. Nature has done much for this place. The clear waters of Beech Creek flow along on its north, the famed Bald Eagle swims gently on the south, and happy little Marsh Creek glides by on its western side—all these forming a junction on the east.

The B. E. V. R. R. runs within easy walking distance, and the old Centre county pike leading from Lock Haven to Bellefonte runs through the centre of the village.

The town is surrounded by as good a farming country as we have in Centre county, which it a desirable location. Its facilities for good are two churches—the Disciple, a large brick building, well finished, with grounds nicely fenced, and a large cemetery. The membership numbers about two hundred. Elder Blair, of Bradford county, is their present pastor. The Baptist church is a neat and well finished building, with a large cemetery laid out in the most approved style. Its membership numbers about one hundred, and Rev. W. A. Ridge is their present pastor.

A large frame school house is situated in the centre of the place, with four splendid rooms, two up and two down stairs. Our schools are among the best in the county. Our business ability in my next. LATROBE.

Unionville Brevities.

We had a regular freeze last Thursday night. Ice formed an eighth of an inch in thickness.

The Bellefonte and Unionville trout fishers returned on Friday night from the mountains, and reported a catch of 150 dozen of the speckled beauties. We imagine their slumbers, during the cold nights, must have been exceedingly polaric in temperature.

H. W. Hoover concluded he would burn brush on Thursday night on his job, one mile west of here, and as a first class brush burner he is a success, as the wind rekindled some smouldering embers the next morning and set the wood on fire, destroying about 300 cords. As usual, our citizens turned out and succeeded in saving the balance, some 300 cords. We understand the loss is covered by insurance. MACK.

Port Matilda.

The fires on the Allegheny and Muncy mountains are still raging. Beginning at the summit it has extended over thousands of acres of land, burning the fences of Henry Miller, George Miller, Henry Yingler, and others. Henry Crain's barn caught fire several times. John T. Fowler lost one hundred cords of bark. The fire has extended more than twelve miles at this writing, and stopped travel on some of the roads in this vicinity. S.

An Aged Citizen Gone.

Mr. Philip Crider, of Snow Shoe, father of P. P. Crider, of Lock Haven, and grandfather of F. W. Crider, of this place, died on Saturday night last. Mr. Crider had been in feeble health for some time, we are informed, and being well advanced in years, his death was expected to occur at any time. He had attained the ripe old age of 94 years, and had he been spared to us but six years longer would have become a centenarian. He was well known throughout this and adjoining communities, and much respected by all. The remains of the deceased were taken to Lock Haven on Monday for burial.

That Wonderful Calf.

Our Eagleville correspondent says: —Either you or I ruined that wonder about the calf in my last. Let me give it again: The calf is the property of P. B. Crider, and it is now fourteen months old, and is the mother of a calf one month old. Both mother and calf can be seen on the farm of Mr. Crider, in Liberty township, and farmed by Mr. Minsker. Don't be afraid to publish this, as I am responsible for what I say.

Warning.

The correspondent of the Owl from this place is hereby warned to use a little more discretion hereafter in his attacks upon our citizens, especially in alluding to young ladies, as he is known, and may be made to prove some of his charges. FRIEND.

—Drink none but Aschinbach & Miller's birch beer, the popular summer beverage, if you want to quench your thirst, keep your body cool, and prevent summer complaints. See advertisement. 20-1m.

MARRIED.

BRICKER—STOVER—At the residence of the bride's parents, in Unionville, May 11, 1880, by Rev. J. A. Woodcock, Mr. I. S. Bricker, of Boalsburg, and Miss Laura E. Stover, of Unionville.

DIED.

MONTGOMERY—On Monday, May 10, 1880, of Cancer, at the home of her sister, Mrs. Robert Campbell, near Lewistown, Miss Sue F. Montgomery, aged 55 years.

Miss Montgomery was strong in Jesus Christ. In dying, great is her gain, while proportionally great is the loss sustained by the church and home and friends. Hearty in hospitality, sincere in friendship, ever ready in need, cautious and decided in judgment, instant in prayer, and fruitful in many graces of the Spirit, she stood for more than twenty-five years a pillar in the Lick Run Presbyterian Church at Jacksonville. Pain, perplexity and grief ever yielded to her faith, through which triumphant she lives, we have good reason to hope, a conqueror and more, thro' him that loved even to his dying for her.

Woman we love, who "had no choice
Whether thou went or stayed,"
Resting in faith, we now rejoice
That thou a saint art made.

Spirit distinct from buried form,
Still strong in faith and love,
Attend e'en yet with wonted charm
And fix our love above.

Be still, O! Soul, and know indeed
That I thy Lord am God;
The way of grief through which I lead
All saints to Heaven have trod.
